PRELIMINARY REMARKS.

SIR JAMES WARE'S History of the Bishops of Ireland, as enlarged by Walter Harris, and published in 1739, is a folio volume, consisting of 660 pages. Of these no more than sixty, exactly one-eleventh part (instead of one-fourth), are devoted to the province of Tuam; so little of ecclesiastical information could be obtained, even at that time, concerning this remote and often distracted province.

The lapse of upwards of a century has still further diminished the stock of materials which existed in Harris's day; so that I shall hope to stand excused with all reasonable men, if this portion of my work exhibits a still more meagre appearance than the others. In truth, the lists of succession in almost every diocese are defective; and the information which could be gleaned respecting individuals was very scanty.

It must also be taken into consideration, that some of the Chapters of Tuam province have but few members. Indeed, several of these dioceses are extremely limited in the number of benefices and of clergy. Thus, for instance, Clonfert contains only eleven benefices ; Killala has thirteen benefices (including the deanery), consisting of twenty-seven parishes ; and out of these twenty-seven, there are only three in which the incumbent receives the rectorial as well as vicarial tithes. In Achonry diocese, the benefices (including the deanery) are only nine ; the parishes are twenty-five. In only three of them are the rectorial tithes received by the incumbent. In all the other instances they are at present in the hands of laymen.

The whole diocese of Kilmacduagh contains but four benefices (including the deanery). These are composed of twenty-three parishes. There is only one Rector, who receives the entire tithes of his parishes, two in number.

The Capitular bodies of this province are not uniform in their constitution. Several of them have lost certain members which manifestly belonged to them two or more centuries ago ; but none present the defective appearance of some of those in Ulster, as Kilmore, Ardagh, or Clonmacnois.

The bishopric of TUAM now includes the minor sees of Mayo and Enachdune. Its Chapter consists at present of a Dean, Provost, Archdeacon, and eight Prebendaries. There is evidence that in ancient times it possessed a Chancellor and a Treasurer. In the sixteenth century the number of its Vicars Choral was five. These have been gradually withdrawn ; at the present time there is only one. From the year 1661 to 1741, the see of Kilfenora, in the province of Munster, was annexed to Tuam ; and from 1741 to 1839 (Kilfenora having been disunited), that of Ardagh, in the province of Ulster, was joined to it. The Church Temporalities Act of 1834 restored Ardagh to the see of Kilmore, and united Killala and Achonry to the diocese of Tuam.

The ancient see of KILLALA, in the county of Mayo, preserved its distinct and independent position from the days of St. Patrick till the year 1834, when the ill-omened Church Temporalities Act annexed it to Tuam, as above mentioned. Its Chapter formerly comprised a Dean, Archdeacon, Provost, and two Prebendaries. In the seventeenth century several other prebendal churches were added to it. At present the prebends are five in number. The Provost is now styled Præcentor. The diocese of ACHONRY, which I have said contains very few benefices, was united to Killala in the year 1623, and the union has continued to this day. Its Chapter formerly comprised a Dean, Provost, Archdeacon, and five Prebendaries. In the seventeenth century several other churches of the diocese were styled prebendal. At the present day the Prebendaries are three.

The diocese of ELPHIN contains within it several smaller sees, which appear to have been separate and independent at various periods between the sixth and thirteenth centuries, as Ardcarne, Drumcliffe, Roscommon, &c., of which some slight account will be found at p. 130, seq. In the year 1841 it became united to Kilmore and Ardagh, in the province of Ulster, under the strange carving operations of the Church Temporalities Act.

The Chapter of Elphin has been altered from its original constitution. Anciently it contained twelve Prebendaries, of which only eight now remain. Its Provost has been changed to a Præcentor.

The diocese of CLONFERT received the annexation of Kilmacduagh in the year 1601; and in 1834 both of them became united to Killaloe, a bishopric in a different province, under the before-named Act. Clonfert is the only diocese in Ireland, which has preserved that ancient ecclesiastical officer, a Sacrist. The other members of its Chapter are, a Dean, Archdeacon, and eight Prebendaries.

The small diocese of KILMACDUAGH, situate in the south-western part of the county of Galway, was united to Clonfert in 1601, and with it has been handed over to Killaloe, as stated above. Its Chapter has varied in its component parts from time to time. At one period it had six Prebendaries; afterwards five; at present there are only two.

The contents of the Diocesan Registries are in general very scanty, almost all the most ancient records having been lost. Those of Tuam, which remain, are preserved in the vestry room of the Cathedral; but all the others are kept in private dwelling-houses; and of course are continually subject to all the casualties to which such buildings are liable.

At Tuam, the oldest Book of Titles commences at the year 1662; the oldest Roll of Oaths at 1752; the oldest Visitation Book, 17—. Among the papers there are some relating to the diocese of Kilfenora, between the years 1661 and 1741, during which period the latter see continued annexed to Tuam; and others relating to the diocese of Ardagh, between 1741 and 1839. There are likewise some few Visitation Books of the Province, viz. of Elphin, 1787, &c.; of Clonfert, 1742, 1787, &c.; of Kilmacduagh, 1811, &c.; of Killala and Achonry, 1793, &c.

At KILLALA, the oldest Title Book is of the year 1695; the oldest Roll, 1727; oldest Visitation Book, 1708. The records of Achonry are kept in the Killala books.

At ELPHIN, the oldest Title Book is of 1661; Roll of Oaths, 1720; Visitation Book, 1722. The Chapter Book of Elphin commences in 1723.

At CLONFERT, the oldest Book of Titles is of 1693; Roll of Oaths, 1735; Visitation Book, 1722. The Registrar of this diocese, Peter White, on his appointment to his office in the year 1717, expressed his horror at the nakedness of the repository, in a quaint memorandum, stating that he “found in the Registry no Records, nor anything else!”

In preparing this portion of my work, as well as the former ones, I have been favoured by the warm countenance of the Bishops of the Province, and the ready and efficient aid of their Registrars. I beg to express my best thanks on this account to the Lord Bishops of Tuam, of Elphin, and of Killaloe and Clonfert; also to the Rev. J. Clarke, of Tuam; the Rev. Edward Hartigan, of Clonfert; Frederick Stock, Esq. of Killala; and E. B. Kenney, Esq. of Elphin. I am likewise indebted to the Deans of Killala, Elphin, and Kilmacduagh, and to the Rev. C. H. G. Butson, of Clonfert, for much kind assistance and information; to the Rev. William Reeves, for the ancient Papal Taxations of the province; and to M. W. Savage, Esq. Clerk of the Privy Council, Dublin, for permission to extract from the original Council Books the suspensions of appointments to Cathedral Dignities or Prebends, which have taken place under the Church Temporalities Acts.

Having now, under Divine favour, brought this compilation to a close, I have to admit its numerous deficiencies and other imperfections; some of which, perhaps, might have been avoided by more minute and protracted inquiries. But I trust that, even in its present state, it may occasionally supply my brethren and others with useful information, not easily to be obtained elsewhere, and which appeared to me to be in yearly danger of becoming almost wholly lost to the Public.

May the Church of Ireland approve the design, and overlook its inadequate execution, and be willing to accept the unworthy offering from one of her adopted sons and most devoted servants,

DIOCESE OF TUAM.

THE see of Tuam is said to have been founded about the beginning of the sixth century. Its prelates are sometimes called by the Irish Annalists "Bishops, or Archbishops, of Connaught." The present diocese of Tuam comprises two other bishoprics, which were annexed to Tuam at different periods; namely, that of Mayo, which became united to it in the year 1559; and Enachdune, which, after a long series of disputes between the respective prelates, was finally annexed to Tuam, about the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

The Bishops of each see will be found below, so far as the present imperfect materials can furnish them.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

In Harris's edition of Ware is an engraving of the seal of Archbishop Felix O'Ruadan, dated 1202; inscribed SIG. FÆL. O RUADAN. ARCHIEP. TUAM, with a standing figure of a Bishop in his robes, giving the benediction. And also of another, inscribed SIGILLUM ARCHIEP. TUAM, 1739, which bears an entirely different coat of arms. No ancient seal is remaining in the Registry at Tuam.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 501 (circa). ST. JARLATH, a man of great learning, and exemplary purity of life, is said to have founded a monastery at a place called Cluain-fois, near Tuam, about the beginning of the sixth century. To this monastery he attached a school, in which, among other eminent scholars, St. Brendan, afterwards Abbat of Clonfert, and St. Colman, the first Bishop of Cloyne, were educated under his inspection. Soon afterwards he erected a cathedral church in Tuam, and became its first Bishop. He lived to a great age. The time of his death is not exactly known, but is believed to be about the year 540.

Ware has stated that certain "Prophecies," which are still extant, have been attributed to Jarlath; but he is of opinion that they are the production of some one of his successors at a far more recent period.

The list of St. Jarlath's successors for some centuries is sadly imperfect.

781. FERDOMNACH was Bishop. He died in this year.

969. EUGENE M'CLERIGH, called "Bishop of Connaught," died.

1033. MURCHAD O'NIOC died.

1085. AEDH O'HOISIN (now called O'HESSIAN), who is styled "Bishop of Connaught", died.

1086. ERCHAD O'MAEL OMAIR died.

1091, or 1092. CORMAC O'CAIRIL (O'CARROL?) died.

1117, or 1118. CATHASACH O'CONAIL died.

1128. MURCHAD O'NIOC (see above) died, on the island called Inis an Ghoill. [O'Flaherty.]

1136. DONALD O'DUBHAI, whom the Annalists style "Archbishop of Connaught," died on March 17th, at Clonfert, and was there buried.

Harris notes the curious circumstance, that three Bishops bearing the same names, namely, of Tuam, Elphin, and Clonmacnois, should have died in the same year; or else, that the same prelate should have ruled over those three distant dioceses.

1150. MAURICE or MUREDACH O'DUBHAI died, aged 75. He was a person of so eminent wisdom and liberality, that one of the old annalists has proclaimed that "when he died, Ireland died with him." He was buried in the Abbey of Cong.

ARCHBISHOPS.

1150. EDAN O'HOISIN, O'OSSIN, or UA DEISIN, succeeded. He received the pall of an Archbishop from Cardinal Paparo, the Pope's Legate, at the Synod of Kells, in 1152. He is greatly celebrated for piety, liberality, and learning. He died in 1161, and was buried in his cathedral, where formerly an epitaph in Irish to his memory might be seen.

1161. CATHOLICUS or CADHLA O'DUBHAI succeeded. He appears to have been a person of great talent; and was employed in much important business, of Church and State, both in England and at Rome. Having presided over this see during the long period of forty years, he died at a very advanced age, in 1201, in the Abbey of Cong.

1201. FELIX O'RUADAN, a Cistercian Monk, uncle of Roderic O'Conor, King of Ireland, succeeded. In 1235 he resigned his charge, and retired to St. Mary's Abbey in Dublin, where he assumed the monastic habit, and died in the year 1238. His episcopal seal is engraved in Harris's Ware.

1235. MARIANUS or MAEL-MURRY O'LAGHNAN, Dean of Tuam, having been elected by the Chapter, was accepted by the Pope, and afterwards received confirmation from the King. The Four Masters seem to intimate that he was consecrated in England. He is said to have been an eminent canonist. He died at the town of Athlone, about Christmas, in the year 1249.

1250. FLORENCE M'FLYNN, or FLOIN, by others called FIACHA O'FLYN, Chancellor of Tuam, having been elected by the Chapter, was confirmed by the King, and subsequently by the Pope, "on account of his great learning and wisdom." [Four Masters.] He was consecrated at Tuam, on Christmas Day. During a vacancy of the see of Enachdune, Florence took possession both of its spiritualities and temporalities, and retained them during his life. In the year 1255 he went over to England, to confer with the King upon that and other Church matters; and appears to have succeeded in his objects; as the Four Masters tell us, that "all the favours which he asked were honourably granted to him by the King." He died at Bristol on his return to Ireland, in 1256, leaving behind him a high character for learning and knowledge of the laws.

[1256. JAMES O'LAGHNAN was unanimously elected by the Chapter, and received the King's confirmation, in a patent dated October 16th. Yet he never was able to obtain possession of his see, because the Pope had intruded another person into it.]

1257. WALTER DE SALERNO, also called WALTER DE LONDON, Dean of St. Paul's, was appointed by the Pope; and after some difficulty obtained King Henry's confirmation, and had his temporalities restored. He never personally visited his see, having been cut off by death at London, on his way home from Rome, in April or August, 1258.

1259. THOMAS, or TOMULTACH O'CONOR, Bishop of Elphin, was elected by the Chapter, confirmed by the Pope, and accepted by the King. He was consecrated in the Pope's palace at Rome, from whence he brought home a Pallium, and great favours for the clergy besides. He appears to have been a man of ability, learning, and judgment. Having governed the sees of Tuam and Enachdune during twenty years, he died at Tuam in June, 1279. After his death, the see was kept vacant for some years.
1286. STEPHEN of FULBURN, Bishop of Waterford, was translated to Tuam by a Papal bull, dated 12th July, 1286, after a long contest between the rival claims of two other candidates, who had been severally elected by different portions of the Chapter of Tuam. Fulburn was an Englishman, and was a member of the Order of Knights Hospitallers; he twice filled the office of Lord Justice of Ireland. He held the see of Enachdune as well as that of Tuam; but not without serious opposition from a rival, John de Ufford, who had been elected Bishop and had received the King's confirmation of his appointment. He died in Dublin, on July 3rd, 1288, and was buried in Christ Church Cathedral.
1289. WILLIAM DE BERMINGHAM (called by the Irish "MAC FEORIS"), the son of Miler Bermingham, the Chief of Athenry, was elected, and received confirmation from the King. Going afterwards to Rome, he accepted a fresh title to his see, from the Pope. For some years he held Enachdune, which was vacant, until a new Bishop of that see was elected. He died in January, 1311-12; and was buried in the Dominican Abbey of Athenry, which had been founded by his father.
1312. MALACHI MAC ÆDHA (or MAC HUGH), Bishop of Elphin, was elected by the Canons; and having been approved by the King, was also approved and confirmed by the Pope. He united Enachdune once more to the see of Tuam, by a formal decree of Pope John XX. notwithstanding the opposition of another prelate, whose claims to it were supported by the King, and the fact that it had been governed by Bishops of its own for more than twenty years. After an incumbency of thirty-five years, Malachi died on August 10th, 1348, and was buried in the Cathedral of Tuam.

1349. THOMAS O'CARROL, Archdeacon of Cashel, and a Canon of Ardfert, was preferred to this see by the Pope; although another person of high family, Robert Bermingham, had been elected Bishop by the Chapter. He was consecrated at Avignon. It is related, that O'Carrol had been elected to the sees of Ardfert, and also of Clonmacnois; but that he chose to decline both those bishoprics. He appears to have been a person of eminent learning, and greatly esteemed. In 1365 the Pope translated him from hence to Cashel.

1365. JOHN O'GRADA (O'GRADY), Archdeacon of Cashel, was elected by the Chapter, and received consecration at Avignon. The King accepted him, and restored his temporalities forthwith. The Four Masters, ever lavish of commendatory phrases, style him "the most distinguished man of his time for wisdom and hospitality." He died at Limerick, on September 19th, 1371, and was there interred.

1372. GREGORY, Bishop of Elphin, was promoted to Tuam by the Pope. We hear nothing of his acts or character. He died in 1384.

1384. GREGORY O'MOGHAN, or O'MAHON, obtained an appointment to the See of Tuam from Clement VII. one of the contending claimants of the Papal throne; but in the next year his rival, Pope Urban VI. having obtained the mastery, deposed Gregory, and appointed another Archbishop in his room. This insulting treatment is said to have broken his heart, and caused his death in 1392. O'Donovan is of opinion that this prelate had been married before he took Holy Orders, as two of his sons are named in a pedigree of the family. [Hy-Fiachrach, p. 42.]

1386. WILLIAM O'CORMACAIN was declared Archbishop by Pope Urban VI. But in 1394 his patron thought fit to compel him to resign in favour of a new protégé, and to retire to the see of Clonfert. It is said that he took this ill-treatment so much to heart, that he neglected to take out the necessary instruments for his last bishopric, and died before he was put into possession of that See.

1394. MAURICE O'KELLY, Bishop of Clonfert, being a favourite of the Pope, was translated to this see, compulsorily vacated by his predecessor. He was a man of high blood, belonging to the family of the chieftains of Hy-Many. Ma Geoghegan calls him "a learned and witty prelate." He died on September 29th, 1409 (not 1407, as stated by Ware). [O'Donovan's Tribes of Hy-Many.]

1410. JOHN BABYNGHE, D. D. a Dominican friar, was appointed by Pope Alexander V. before the end of 1409; but that Pope dying before his bulls were expedited, he received a new appointment from Pope John XXIII. dated 25th May, 1410. According to Ware, he enjoyed his bishopric a very short time (but the Hibernia Dominicana states that he lived till 1427, and says nothing about his having resigned at a previous period).

1411(?) CORNELIUS, a Franciscan friar, was promoted to this See by the Pope, on September 18th of this year. [Ware.] But De Burgo shows that this date must needs be wrong, and that Babynghe certainly held the archbishopric in July, 1418.

1427. JOHN BATERLEY (or BARLEY), D. D. an Englishman, of the Order of St. Dominic, succeeded. He was a person of great learning, and an eloquent and assiduous preacher. It is reported that he composed several works, but none of them are known to be remaining. He sat about nine or ten years; and was buried in the Dominican Convent of Athenry, on the north side of the high altar.

[1437. "The Archbishop of Connaught Tuam, of the Bermingham family, died." [Four Masters.] Quære, to whom does this allude?]

1438. THOMAS O'KELLY, a Dominican friar, Bishop of Clonfert, was translated to Tuam by the Pope. He is spoken of as being a man eminent for piety and liberality. He died in 1441.

1441. JOHN DE BURGO, or BURKE, a member of the family afterwards created Earls of Clanrickard, succeeded. Some of the annalists call him "the Archbishop of Conaught, the son of the Parson, son of Mac Johnin Burke." [Annals of Clonmacnois, apud Ware.] He died in Galway, in the year 1450.

[1451. REDMOND M'WILLIAM BERMINGHAM is said to have succeeded Burke, by provision from the Pope; but he did not live long enough to arrive from Rome and take possession of his see. [Annals of Clonmacnois, apud Ware.]

1451. The name of the next Archbishop has not been preserved.

1458. DONAT O'MURRY, O'MURCHADHA, or O'MURRIDY, an Augustinian Canon, was appointed by the Pope, about this year. He distinguished himself by founding the College of St. Nicholas at Galway, consisting of a Warden and eight Choral Vicars; he also endowed it with the Archbishop's fourth portion of tithes arising out of the town of Galway, and with other property. [O'Flaherty's West Connaught.] He died on the 17th of January (in the year 1484, according to Ware's opinion).

1486. PETER of BURGUNDY, a Dominican friar, is stated to have been Archbishop of Tuam in 1486. [Hib. Domin.]

1487(?) WILLIAM JOY was advanced by the Pope. His consecration took place in 1487. Ware believes that the Pope appointed him in 1485; but perhaps the appointment was not completed at that time. He died on December 28th, 1501.

1503. PHILIP PINSON, D. D. an English Franciscan friar, a suffragan of the Bishop of Hereford, was appointed by the Pope, at the request of King Henry VII. on December 2nd. But he died of the plague at Rome, within three days after his appointment.

1506. MAURICE O'FHELY, or DE PORTU, D. D. a Franciscan friar, was promoted to this see by the Pope, on June 26th, after a vacancy of three years, in which interval King Henry VII. had bestowed it upon Walter Blake, Bishop of Clonmacnois (who had been nominated once before to Tuam, but unsuccessfully). The Pope prevailed.

Maurice is related to have been a man of profound learning, an honour to his country. Three of the provinces of Ireland contended for the honour of his birth. Sir James Ware judged that he was born near Baltimore, in the county of Cork. He was educated at the University of Padua; and for some years employed himself as principal superintendent of the Press set up at Venice by Octavian Scot, a nobleman of Mons. After attending at the Council of Lateran in 1512, he returned to Ireland; but shortly afterwards was seized with a mortal sickness, which carried him off at Galway, on May 25th, 1513, before he had time to say his first Mass in his cathedral. He was buried in the Franciscan Convent of Galway, on the south side of the choir. A list of his published works, so far as ascertained, may be seen in Ware's Writers of Ireland.

1513. THOMAS O'MULLALY, or LALY, who probably was a Franciscan friar, succeeded Maurice. He died on April 28th, 1536, and was buried at Galway, in the same tomb with his immediate predecessor.

1536-7. CHRISTOPHER BODKYN, or BODEKIN, Bishop of Kilmacduagh, was translated to Tuam by King Henry VIII. on February 15th. He was licensed to retain the See of Kilmacduagh in commendam. He appears to have pliantly conformed to the religious faith of the reigning monarch for the time, and by these means retained his preferments under Henry, Edward, Mary, and Elizabeth. He died, full of years, in 1572, and was buried at Galway. [See Cod. Clar. 56.]

1573. WILLIAM MULLALY, or LALY, B.C.L. was a native of Galway, and was educated at New Inn Hall, Oxford. He became Dean of Tuam in 1558; and held the rectory of Athenry, and the prebend of Laccagh, by letter of Privy Seal dated November 6th, 1572. [Rolls Office.] He was raised to the archbishopric by patent dated April 14th; and held the See of Enachdune in commendam. Harris relates that, not content with these, he endeavoured to obtain possession of Clonfert and Kilmacduagh also, but did not succeed. He died in 1595.

1595. NEHEMIAH DONELLAN, a native of the county of Galway, was educated in the University of Cambridge. Soon after his return to Ireland, he was made coadjutor to his predecessor Laly; and upon his death succeeded to the archbishopric, by patent dated May 17th.

In the writ of Privy Seal directing his appointment, it was alleged that he was "very fit to communicate with the people in their mother tongue, and a very meet instrument to retain and instruct them in duty and religion; and that he had also taken great pains in translating and putting to the press the Communion-Book and New Testament in the Irish language, which her Majesty greatly approved of." [Rot. Pat. cited in D'Alton's Boyle.] He voluntarily resigned his see in the year 1609; and dying soon afterwards at Tuam was buried in his cathedral. The dedication and preface to the Irish New Testament printed in 1602 are of his composition. For some account of his family, see "The Tribes of Hy-Many," printed by the Archæological Society of Ireland, p. 159.

1609. WILLIAM DANIEL, or O'DONNELL, D. D. was born at Kilkenny. He was one of the first appointed Scholars of Trinity College, Dublin, and afterwards one of the first elected Fellows of the same. His patent for this see bears date August 2nd [Rot. Pat. 7 Jac. I.]; and at the same time he was made Treasurer of St. Patrick's, Dublin. He was consecrated during the same month, in St. Patrick's. He was a person of distinguished learning, and has left his country deeply indebted to him for his important labour of finishing the Irish translation of the New Testament, which had been commenced by Nicholas Walsh, Bishop of Ossory, and John Kearney, Treasurer of St. Patrick's, Dublin; and also the version of the Book of Common Prayer; the former of which works was printed in 1602, and the latter in 1608.

The Archbishop died at Tuam on July 11th, 1628, and was buried in the same tomb with his predecessor Donellan.

1629. RANDOLPH BARLOW, D. D. Dean of Christ Church,

Dublin, and Archdeacon of Meath, having been warmly recommended by Archbishop Ussher to the King, was advanced to this see by patent dated April 2nd. He was permitted to hold his deanery and the rectory of Athenry, in commendam, for some years. (He resigned the deanery in 1634.) His consecration took place at Drogheda in the month of April. He died at Tuam, on February 22nd, 1637-8, aged 66; and was buried in the cathedral, where his tombstone still remains, inscribed as follows:

“ RANDOLPH BARLOW, sometime Lord Archbishop of this diocese, who departed this life the 22nd of February, 1637,
Lieth here, interred in peace and rest,
Too rich a gem for such a chest.”

This stone was formerly hidden under the communion table, but has been removed recently to the southern side of the chancel.

1638. RICHARD BOYLE, D. D. Bishop of Cork, &c. was translated to this see on May 30th. During the rebellion of 1641 he was put in great danger of his life; and with the Bishop of Killala and other Protestants, was obliged to take refuge in the town of Galway. He died in Cork, on March 19th, 1644-5; and was buried in that cathedral, in a tomb which he had previously prepared for himself.

1645. JOHN MAXWELL, D. D. Bishop of Killala, succeeded, by patent bearing date August 30th. He was a person of great learning, an eminent preacher, and of warm attachment to the cause and person of King Charles I. Bishop Burnet relates of him, that on hearing of some disaster which had befallen the Royal cause, he was so affected with grief, that it caused his death, in Dublin, on February 14th, 1646-7. The See remained unfilled till the Restoration.

TUAM AND KILFENORA.

- 1660-1. SAMUEL PULLEIN, D. D. a native of England, educated at Cambridge, came to Ireland as Chaplain to the Marquess of Ormond, Lord Lieutenant. In 1634 he was presented to a prebend in the Church of Kilkenny; in 1636 was made Chancellor of Cashel, and Rector of Knockgraffan in that diocese; in 1638 became Dean of Clonfert; and in 1642 a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin. At the rebellion of 1641 he was living at Cashel; and was plundered and severely threatened by the rebels. For three months he was protected there, in the house of Mr. James Sall, a Jesuit; and then, making his escape, he retired to England. Upon the King's Restoration he was promoted to this archbishopric, by patent dated January 19th, 1660-1; and was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on January 27th. He also received a grant of the See of Kilfenora, to be holden in union with Tuam; which union continued until the year 1742. He died on January 24th, 1666-7; and was buried in his Cathedral, opposite to the Archbishop's throne.
1667. JOHN PARKER, D. D. Bishop of Elphin, was translated to the Sees of Tuam, Enachdune, and Kilfenora, by patent dated August 9th, and was enthroned at Tuam on September 5th. In 1678-9 he was translated to the archbishopric of Dublin.
- 1678-9. JOHN VESEY, D. D. Bishop of Limerick, succeeded, by patent dated March 18th; and was enthroned on May 16th. [D. Reg.] In September, 1684, he was appointed Warden of Galway. During the tyranny of Lord Tyrconnell under King James II. he was forced to fly from Tuam; and with his wife and twelve children retired to England, and for some years employed himself as a lecturer in one of the city churches of London. At the Revolution he returned to his diocese. He presented to the cathedral the greatest portion of its communion-plate; and by his will he left valuable benefactions, both to his diocese and to the poor. He died on March 28th, 1716, in the seventy-ninth year of his age; and was buried at Holymount, his place of residence.

He left behind him the following works:

1. The Life of John Bramhall, Archbishop of Armagh (prefixed to an edition of his works). folio. Dublin, 1678.

2. An Assize Sermon, on Psalm cxxii. 6. 4to. London, 1683.

3. A Sermon preached at Windsor before the King. 4to. London, 1684.

4. A Sermon addressed to the Protestants of Ireland in London. 4to. London, 1689.

5. A Sermon before the Houses of Parliament. 4to. Dublin, 1692.

1716. EDWARD SYNGE, D. D. Bishop of Raphoe, was promoted to this see, together with those of Enachdune and Kilfenora, and the Wardenship of Galway, by patent dated June 8th. He was enthroned at Kilfenora on November 7th. This Prelate voluntarily resigned to his clergy the "quarta pars Episcopalis" of the tithes of the whole diocese, which his predecessors had always enjoyed; and procured an Act of Parliament securing its appropriation from that time forward. He presided over his sees with exemplary diligence for twenty-five years; and during that time exerted himself in the publication of tracts upon religious and moral subjects, to the number of fifty or more. A list of these may be seen in Ware's Writers of Ireland; and a more full one in Nichols' Literary Anecdotes. Many of them have been adopted, and frequently reprinted for general distribution, by the Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge.

The Archbishop died at Tuam, on July 23rd, 1741; and was buried in the churchyard of his cathedral, at the east end of the church. It was his own desire that no monument should be erected for him; but the inhabitants, to mark their respect to his memory, have placed the capital of the ancient Cross of Tuam over his grave.

TUAM and ARDAGH.

1741-2. JOSIAH HORT, D. D. Bishop of Kilmore, was translated to the See of Tuam, by patent dated January 27th; and received that of Ardagh in commendam, as did his successors for a century. He presented an organ to his cathedral of Tuam. Some of his earlier writings are mentioned under the diocese of Kilmore. He published his primary Charge in 1742, under the title of "Instructions to the Clergy of the Diocese of Tuam;" this was so highly approved, and judged to be of permanent utility, that it has been reprinted several times by the University of Oxford, in the collection called "The Clergyman's Instructor." He also published "A Sermon, before the Incorporated Society of Protestant Schools, in Dublin, on March 23rd, 1745." 4to. Dublin, 1746. He died on December 14th, 1751, and was buried at St. George's, Dublin.

1752. JOHN RYDER, D. D. Bishop of Down and Connor, was translated to the Sees of Tuam and Ardagh, by patent dated March 19th. He died on February 4th, 1775, at Nice, in the south of France; and was buried there by his own desire, in a field which had been purchased for a cemetery by the British Consul.

1775. JEMMET BROWNE, D. D. Bishop of Elphin, and previously of Cork, succeeded, by patent bearing date April 11th. He died, at his family seat near Cork, in June, 1782, and was there buried (in the cathedral? or at Ballinaspic?) where his earliest preferment had been.

1782. The Hon. JOSEPH DEANE BOURKE, D. D. Bishop of Ferns and Leighlin, succeeded, by patent dated August 8th. He presented to the cathedral its great bell. In 179—, by the death of his elder brother, he became third Earl of Mayo. He died at Kilbeggan, in the county of Meath, on August 17th, 1794; and was interred in the burying ground of his family near Naas.

1794. The Hon. WILLIAM BERESFORD, D. D. Bishop of Ossory, succeeded. His patent bears date October 10th. He presented the stained glass windows to the cathedral. In December, 1812, he was created Baron Decies. He died at Tuam, on September 8th, 1819; and was buried at Clonegam, near Curraghmore, the seat of his family, in the county of Waterford.

1819. The Hon. WILLIAM POWER TRENCH, D. D. Bishop of Elphin, was translated to these sees on November 10th. In 1834, upon the death of Dr. Verschoyle, Bishop of Killala and Achonry, those Sees became united, by Act of Parliament, to that of Tuam. The Archbishop died on March 25th, 1839; and was buried at Creagh, the burial place of his family, near the town of Ballinasloe. The clergy of his diocese erected a handsome marble tablet to his memory in the cathedral.

Upon his death, the See of Tuam ceased to be metropolitical; and that of Ardagh was again united to Kilmore.

TUAM, KILLALA, and ACHONRY.

1839. The Hon. THOMAS PLUNKET, M. A. (eldest son of the first Baron Plunket, Lord Chancellor of Ireland) Dean of Down, was promoted to these sees by patent dated April 9th. He was consecrated at Christ Church, Dublin, in the same month, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Derry and Cashel; and was enthroned at Tuam on June 23rd.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

The cathedral body of Tuam now consists of a Dean, Provost, Archdeacon, and eight Prebendaries; together with one Vicar Choral. It is of great antiquity, being mentioned in the year 1201. It seems not improbable that in early times there was some difference in its constitution. For instance, we find Florence M'Flynn called "Chancellor of Tuam," when he was raised to the archbishopric, in 1250 [Ware]; and Robert Bermingham is likewise called "Chancellor" when elected Archbishop in 1349. [Ibid.] But it is very possible that both these persons were Chancellors of the diocese, i. e. Vicars General. At a later period, at a Visitation during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, Malachi O'Molownan is styled "Treasurer of Tuam." [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 3. 14.] Neither a Chancellor nor Treasurer is acknowledged at the present day.

SEAL.

A seal of the Dean and Chapter is engraved in Harris' Ware. It bears the figure of a very large church, with the inscription, SIG. DECANI ET CAPIT. TUAM, without any date.

SUCCESSION OF DEANS.

1230. MARIAN, or MAEL-MURRY, O'LAGHNAN, said to be an eminent Canonist, was Dean. [Cod. Clar. 46.] In 1235 he was elected Archbishop of the see. He undertook a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and committed an account of his travels to writing. He died at Athlone, shortly before Christmas, in the year 1249.
1282. CONSTANTINE O'DOWD appears as Dean. [Cod. Clar. 46.]
- 133-? PHILIP HANLAIN was Dean. He died on June 19th, 1339. [Ibid.]
1339. DENIS, son of Hugh M'Ædha, succeeded. [Ibid.]
1394. JAMES appears as Dean
1399. JAMES CAER (CARR, or CAHIR?) probably the same person, was Dean. [Ibid.]
1523. THOMAS was Dean. [See the Miscellany of the Irish Archæological Society, vol. i. p. 75.]
1558. WILLIAM MULLALY, or LALY, B.C.L. was a native of Galway, but received his education in the University of Oxford, and graduated there. He was presented to this dignity on November 7th, and with it held the prebend of Laccagh. In 1573 he was raised to the archbishopric. He died in 1595.
1573. EDWARD BROWNE, Prebendary of Laccagh also, was presented to this deanery on April 21st. At the same time he received a dispensation to retain his prebend, together with other preferment; a favour which appears to have been granted to him, by reason of his having been designed by the Queen for the bishopric of Down, but another person had previously received that appointment. In a Visitation Book remaining in Trinity College, Dublin (of about the year 1591) [MS. E. 3. 14.], he is styled Dean of Tuam, and Dean of Mayo or Annaghdown; "but a certain Thomas Ballagh alleges that he is Rector."

1609-10. ABEL WALSH, D. D. a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, was presented on February 6th. [Rot. Pat.] He was a Vicar Choral also at the time. [MS. Marsh.] In December, 1615, the Crown presented him to the vicarage of Eirke, in the diocese of Ossory; and he also held a prebend in the cathedral of Kilkenny.

1625. THOMAS PEYTON, a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, was presented on June 2nd. [Lib. Mun.] He died some time after the year 1637, and was buried in the cathedral, near to the Communion table; where a stone to his memory still remains, but the date of his death is not given on it.

1638? JOHN KING, M. A. a Prebendary of Elphin, succeeded. [Lib. Mun.] He appears as Dean in 1650. [Carte's Ormond, vol. ii. p. 132.]

1661. WILLIAM BUCHANAN, M. A. Dean of Achonry, succeeded, by patent dated June 21st. He was presented again, on the 29th of March following. [Rolls Office.]

1669. JAMES WILSON, M. A. Provost of Tuam; presented by King's letter dated May 18th. (FF.) He died in 1686.

1686. ROBERT ECHLIN, M. A. presented June 30th [Lib. Mun.]; instituted August 21st. (FF.) He met with a sudden death, from the violence of some of his own servants, on Good Friday, April 18th, 1712. He was buried in the cathedral; where a monumental tablet, placed on the north wall, commemorates the occurrence in these words:

“ Hic juxta situm est Rev^{di}. Viri ROBERTI ECHLIN, decani Tuamensis quodcunque erat mortale; qui die Passionis Dominicæ parricidali servorum manu extinctus est, Aprilis 18, A. D. 1712. Ætatis 73.”

1712. JOHN HINTON, D. D. was presented on August 31st; [Lib. Mun.]; and was instituted on September 24th. [D. R.]

[1712. THOMAS BUTLER, M. A. is said to have been promoted to this deanery “on the death of R. Echlin.” (FF.) But quære this.]

[1716. WILLIAM WHITE, M. A. is said to have been appointed Dean. (FF.) But I think this may be an error. White was made Dean of Kilfenora (at that period united to Tuam) in 1716. He resigned on August 2nd, 1724.]

[1724. JONATHAN BRUCE, M. A. succeeded. (FF.) I think there may be the same mistake here. Bruce was appointed Dean of Kilfenora in 1724, and held that dignity to the year 1750, or later.]

1743. ISAAC GERVAIS, M. A. a Prebendary of Lismore, was presented on May 29th. [Lib. Mun.] He died in February, 1756, and was buried at Lismore.

1756. ROBERT JOHNSON, D. D. Rector of Dungannon, and domestic Chaplain to the Earl of Shannon, was presented by King's letter of June 1st [Lib. Mun.], and was instituted on September 9th. [D. R.] In 1759 he was advanced to the bishopric of Cloyne.

1759. DANIEL LE TABLERE, D. D. a Prebendary of Kildare; presented by King's letter dated August 12th; instituted September 5th. [D. R.] In November of this year he was made a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin. He died in 1775.

1775. ROBERT CLARKE was presented on November 1st. He died in 1782.

1782. JOSHUA BERKELEY, D. D. was educated at Westminster School, and afterwards at Christ Church, Oxford. He was presented on April 13th; and instituted on May 15th. [D. R.] He held the deanery till his death in June, 1807.

1807. JAMES MAHON, Clerk, was presented on August 11th; and was instituted and installed on October 1st. [D. Reg.] In the following year he was promoted to the deanery of Dromore.

1809. JOHN WILLIAM KEATINGE, D. D. was a native of Dublin, but received his education in the University of Oxford. He was the last Chaplain of the Irish House of Commons. He was presented to this deanery on January 7th, and was installed on the 17th of the same month. In 1810 he became Provost of Kilmacduagh, and in the same year resigned this deanery for that of St. Patrick's, Dublin.

1810. RICHARD BOURNE, M. A. Chancellor of St. Patrick's, Dublin; presented on June 1st; instituted June 16th. In 1813 he resigned and became Chancellor of Armagh.

1813. THOMAS CARTER, M. A. a Prebendary of Armagh, was presented on July 27th, and instituted on August 27th. He died on the 19th of August, 1849, and was buried in his prebendal church of Tandragee.

1850. No appointment has yet (January 14th) been made.

- 1679-80. CHARLES CROW, M. A. a native of England, became Chaplain to the Earl of Rochester, Lord Lieutenant. He was collated February 14th (FF.), having been appointed on the previous day to the rectory of Killareran. [D. Reg.] In 1702 he was promoted to the bishopric of Cloyne; but retained his Provostship, in commendam, until his death in 1726.

[1726. HENRY MAULE, LL. D. Bishop of Cloyne, had this Provostship included in his patent by mistake, because it had been holden by his predecessor. [Boulter's Letters.]

At his death the appointment was suspended by the Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council, by an order dated December 29th, 1842. No election of a Substitute by the Chapter took place. On November 23rd, 1843, the suspension was removed, after severance of all the revenues belonging to the dignity.

1844. JOHN GALBRAITH, M. A. Vicar Choral, and Vicar of the parish of Tuam; collated January 8th.

CHANCELLOR. See above, p. 19.

TREASURER.

The only intimation of this dignity occurring is the following:

1591 (about). MALACHI O'MOLONA, or O'MOLOWNAN, was deprived for irregularity, by the Royal Visitors. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 3. 14.]

ARCHDEACONS.

Between 1201 and 1223. ALAN was "Archdeacon of Mayo," in the time of Felix, Archbishop of Tuam; and Christian was Archdeacon of Tuam. [King's Collections.]

1289. PHILIP LE BLOUNT, or LE BLOND, was Archdeacon. In 1297 he was Commissary of the Archbishop; in which capacity he engaged in a fierce quarrel with the Dominican monks of Athenry, a full account of which may be seen in Harris's Ware, p. 609. He was still Archdeacon in 1306.

1700. Sir THOMAS VESEY, Bart. M. A. (son of Dr. Vesey, Archbishop of Tuam), was born at Cork, and received his education at Eton, and at Christ Church, Oxford; and afterwards became a Fellow of Oriel College, in that University. He was ordained Deacon by the Archbishop of Dublin, on October 28th, 1699; and Priest, by the same, on June 24th, 1700. CANONS, Whose prebendal stalls and churches are unknown.

1280. NICHOLAS DE MACHIN, a Canon, was elected Archbishop by a portion of the Chapter; but he resigned his pretensions to the See. [Ware.]

1327. MAURICE O'GIBELLAN, LL. D. a Canon, was a philosopher and poet, and is said to have understood the Ogham Irish character better than any other person of his time. He composed some poems, and treatises in prose. The Annals of the Four Masters attribute to him rare endowments, and state that he held very extensive church preferment. They style him "Head Master in Ireland of the ancient and modern Canon and Civil Laws; a truly learned philosopher; a genuine poet; a Canon of the Chapters of Tuam, Elphin, Achonry, Killala, Anaghdune, and Clonfert; an Official, and general Brehon of the archbishopric." See a similar account, from the Annals of Clonmacnois, in O'Donovan's Hy-Fiachrach, p. 75. He died in 1327. [Ware.]

1495. MAGONIUS O'MAYNOR,	} Are named as Canons, in a bull of Pope Alexander VI. dated in this year. [O'Flaherty, pp. 161- 175.]

11. KILBOYNE, or KILARYNE?

MATTHEW TULLY was collated to this prebend on March 6th, 1638-9. (FF.)

It is not easy to say what churches are intended under all these names: some of them may belong to Kilmacduagh, as that diocese is mixed up with that of Tuam in some of the returns. They all occur in a manuscript now in Trinity College Library, of the dates 1573, 1591, &c.

VICARS CHORAL.

It appears that in ancient times the Vicars Choral of Tuam were five in number. In process of time some of these were discontinued, and their revenues were applied to the purposes of an Economy Fund. The diminution in number was gradual, as will be seen below. At the present time there is only a single one.

In the Regal Visitation Book of 1615, the five Vicars Choral are stated to be "Rectors and Vicars of the cathedral church of Tuam."

Between 1558 and 1573, the following Vicars are named.

THOMAS O'DONNELL.

JOHN COSGRAVE.

JOHN DAY. "He is studying at Dublin."

CONLY O'KENNY. "Studying at Oxford."

THOMAS MAGLEY. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 3. 13.]

1671. EDWARD PRICE, Clerk, was collated and instituted October 10th; installed 8th April following. [D. Reg.] He was at this time Prebendary of Kilmainmore, and afterwards of Kilmoylan. He died in 1706.

MINOR SEES.

BISHOPS OF MAYO.

The See of Mayo is believed to have been erected in the middle of the seventh century. Probably it was of but small extent. The time at which it became united to Tuam is doubtful. Sir James Ware thought that the union took place in the year 1210; but his editor, Harris, following Archbishop Ussher's judgment, believes that the union was not perfectly established before the year 1559.

The few prelates, whose names can now be collected, are here enumerated; chiefly taken from the Annals of Innisfallen, as quoted by Harris.

A. D. 665, or 670? ST. GERALD, a native of England, one of the disciples of St. Colman, Bishop of Lindisfarne, enlarged a monastery at Mayo, which Colman had founded, chiefly for the reception of some Englishmen
CONNAUGHT.]

- who had followed him from that country; from which circumstance it afterwards obtained the name of "Mayo of the Saxons." Gerald erected this monastery into an episcopal see, and himself became its first Bishop. He died on March 13th, about the year 697, according to Ware; or, as the Annals of Tigernach say, in 732.
- 726, or 732. MUREDACH M'INRACHT, or the son of INDRECHT, "Bishop of Mayo of the Saxons," died; having been killed in the battle of Conaght. [Ma Geoghegan.] But see O'Donovan's Hy-Fiachrach, p. 453, who maintains that Muredach was not a Bishop, but a Chieftain.
768. AIDAN, Bishop of Mayo, died.
- 1209-10. CELE O'DUBHAI (O'DUFFY), "Bishop of Mayo of the Saxons," died. [Four Masters.]
1231. STEPHEN O'BRACHIN (O'BROCHAN?) "Archennach, or Chief Governor of Mayo," died. [It does not necessarily follow that he was Bishop.]
1428. WILLIAM PRENDERGAST, a Franciscan friar, was promoted to this see by the Pope, on July 16th. In 1430 he was deprived, for not taking out the necessary letters and papers at Rome; upon which,
1430. NICHOLAS WOGOMAI, another Franciscan, was substituted in his room by the Pope, on July 17th.
1478. — O'HIGGIN, "Bishop of Mayo of the Saxons," died. [Four Masters.]
- 1492, or 1493. ODO, or HUGH, Bishop of Mayo, died.
1493. JOHN BELL, a Franciscan friar, who was acting as a Suffragan of the Archbishop of Canterbury, succeeded, on November 5th.
1557. EUGENE MAC BRECHAN, BRETHERNE, or BRETHMAIN, was Bishop in this year; and held a provincial Synod at Drogheda, on behalf of the Archbishop of Armagh. [Reg. Dowdall.] In 1559 the See of Mayo became permanently united to that of Tuam.

ARCHDEACONS OF MAYO.

See among the earlier Archdeacons of Tuam.

THE SEE OF ENACHDUNE.

Enachdune, now called Annaghdown, is a village in the county of Galway, situate on the shore of Lough Corrib. It is understood that an episcopal See was established here at a very early period; but the exact date does not appear to be known. Probably here, as occurred in several other instances, the ancient abbey was raised to episcopal dignity. At different periods we find this see united to that of Tuam (and possibly to that of Clonfert); but I have not been able to ascertain the year in which its final and formal union with Tuam took place.

A curious description of this bishopric, and of the clergy belonging to it, occurs in a letter addressed by the Earl of Ossory to Thomas Cromwell, Vicar in spiritual matters to King Henry VIII. This letter, which was copied, by Sir James Ware, from the original among Sir George Carew's papers, has been printed in "State Papers."

The cathedral had a Dean and Chapter, and formerly four Vicars Choral.

The Prelates of Enachdune, so far as we can now trace them, are the following.

BISHOPS.

Sæc. VII. ST. MELDAN was Abbat or Bishop of Lough Orbfen, or Lough Corrib. [Monast. Hibern.]

1152. TUATHAL O'CONACTAIG, Bishop of Enachdune, assisted at the Synod of Kells, in this year. [Harris.] But the Four Masters call him Bishop of Tir Briuin (i. e. Kilmore); and place his death in 1179.

1189. CONCORDS, or CONOR (O'MEALY), Bishop of Enagh-dune, was present at the coronation of King Richard I. [Ware's Annals.] The Four Masters style him "a brilliant gem and a pillar of the Church," and place his death at the year 1201.

1240. MURTAGH O'FLAHERTY, Bishop, died. [Four Masters.]

1250. THOMAS O'MEALLAIDH (O'MALEY) died about this year. [Ibid.]

1251. FLORENCE M'FLIN, Archbishop of Tuam, seized this bishopric, upon the death of O'Maley; and retained both its spiritualities and temporalities; which afterwards were confirmed to him on his petition, by King Henry III. in the year 1252, at which time the bishopric was declared to be nothing more than an ordinary parish. Notwithstanding this declaration, we find several bishops elected to Enagh-dune alone, for a long time after.

1251. CONCORDS, or CONOR, was consecrated to this See, and was confirmed, by the King, on May 8th. But he could not recover his temporalities out of Archbishop Florence's hands.

1259. THOMAS O'CONOR, Archbishop of Tuam, held Enagh-dune also, from this year till his death in 1279.

1282. JOHN DE UFFORD was elected Bishop, and obtained the royal assent on March 16th. But four or five years afterwards he was ejected by the Archbishop of Tuam, who took possession.

1286. STEPHEN of FULBURN, Archbishop of Tuam. [See under Tuam.]

1289. WILLIAM DE BERMINGHAM, who was appointed Archbishop of Tuam in this year, "followed the example of his predecessors, and annexed the church of Enachdune, which was still vacant, to that of Tuam. He also caused the mitre, pastoral staff, and other pontificalia of the Bishop of Enachdune, which had been placed for safety in a convent at Clare, till the creation of a new Bishop, to be taken away." However, he afterwards was compelled to surrender this see.

1306. GILBERT, a Franciscan friar, having been elected by the Dean and Chapter (but without their having obtained the King's license to elect), was consecrated. Two years afterwards his temporalities were restored to him, on June 15th; the King having pardoned his omission, for a fine of £300. The Archbishop of Tuam gave every opposition, and complained of him to the Pope; but Gilbert retained possession for nearly twenty years.

While holding this See, the Bishop appears to have acted as a suffragan in England (as was the custom with many Irish prelates about this period). We find him granting an indulgence of forty days to all those persons who should pray for the souls of William Fundy and his wife, who were buried in the church of Kingsbury, Warwickshire. [Aste's Catalogue of Charters.] Also in the year 1301, he dedicated an altar in the Abbat's Chapel at Nether Cerne Abbey, Dorsetshire; and granted an indulgence of twenty days to those who should visit it. He likewise dedicated the chapel of the Infirmary there; and granted an indulgence of thirty days to all who should visit it. [Hutchins' Dorsetshire, vol. ii. p. 289.]

1324? JAMES O'KEARNEY was appointed Bishop by Pope John XXII. and by the same authority he was translated to Connor, in 1325 or 1326.

1325-6? ROBERT LE PETIT, Bishop of Clonfert, was appointed by the Pope on November 8th; and had his temporalities restored by the King on June 22nd (or December 5th), 1326. [Rot. Claus. 20 Edw. II.] He sat but a short time.

1327. THOMAS O'MALEY, who was Archdeacon of Enachdune in 1311, succeeded. He appears to have gone over to the Pope, who was at Avignon, and to have died in that city. The old annalists place his death in 1328; but Harris is of opinion that he was sitting in 1330, at which time a complaint was made to the Pope by King Edward III. that the Archbishop of Tuam had possessed himself of this see, under cover of a pretended union, said to have been made by the Pope in 1324, which union had been kept secret both from the King and the Bishop. This appeal proved ineffectual, and the Archbishop retained possession.

1330. MALACHI MAC ÆDA, Archbishop of Tuam, recovered this see, as stated above, and kept it till his death in 1348. Yet Ware states (p. 640) that on Bishop O'Maley's death the temporalities of Enachdune were seized into the King's hands, and so continued till the year 1346.

1395. HENRY, Bishop of Enachdune, or of Mayo, is mentioned at this year as being a suffragan to the Bishop of Exeter. [Registr. Exon. Dr. Todd.]

139-. JOHN TWILLOW, Bishop, died in 1402. [Ware.] In 1396 the Bishop of Enachdune, a suffragan of the Bishop of Oxford (quære, Exeter?) dedicated two altars in

- the chapel of Nether Cerne, Dorsetshire. [Hutchins Dorsetshire.]
1402. JOHN BRIT, a Franciscan friar, was appointed successor, on January 24th. [Ware.]
1421. MATTHEW, Bishop of Enachdune, died.
1421. JOHN CONNERE (CONNER? or BONNER?) a Franciscan Friar, was advanced to the See, upon Matthew's death, on November 14th. He appears to have holden preferment in England together with his See. Hutchins [Hist. of Dorset] states, that "in 1422, John Boner, Bishop of Enachdune, exchanged his rectory of Chedington for the vicarage of Nether Cerne in Dorsetshire, to which he was instituted on December 8th, 1422."
1438. JOHN, Bishop of Enachdune, is named as a suffragan of the Bishop of Exeter. [Registr. Exon.]
1450. THOMAS, "Bishop of Enachdune, or of Mayo," was a suffragan of the See of Exeter. [Ibid.]
1484. THOMAS BARRETT appears to have been Bishop (unless there be some confounding of him with T. Barrett, who was Archdeacon of Enachdune, and Bishop of Elphin, in 1372). A manuscript in the British Museum has the following entry: "Mr. Thos. Barrett, Bishop of Knackdune, hath the moyetie of the lordship of Bren, in Brentmarshe, so long as he shall stand Persone there; so that he with the revenues fortifie the sea-walles and bancks for the salvacion of the said lordship." [Cat. MSS. Harleian, No. 1278 (anno 2 Ric. III.) See also Nos. 2293-7.] Thomas Barrett had been Prebendary of Laughton, in the church of York (quære, Lincoln?) and was a Suffragan of the Bishop of Lincoln. [Cole.]
1551. JOHN MOORE is called "Suffragan Bishop of Enachdune;" and receives a mandate to assist at the consecration of Patrick Walsh, Bishop elect of Waterford. [Cod. Clar. 36.]

1573. WILLIAM MULLALY, Archbishop of Tuam, held this see.

1622. A return, made to the Royal Commissioners by Archbishop Daniel, of Tuam, mentions "Annaghdown, formerly a bishopric united to Tuam; now merely a rectory, the revenues of which the Earl of Clanrickard enjoys. It formerly had four Vicars Choral." [MS. Marsh.]

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

There appears to have been in ancient times a Dean, an Archdeacon, and some Canons. [The diocese likewise had its "Official," or Chancellor.] The Canons are mentioned in the year 1206. [Ware, p. 605.] In 1306 the Dean and Chapter are mentioned as electing their Bishop. [Ibid.]

DEANS.

1523. DONALD O'FLAHERTY is Dean. In 1527 he undertakes to defend the Warden and Vicars of Galway against Bernard O'Flaherty and all his claims. [O'Flaherty, p. 226.]

1558. PATRICK BLACH, or BLACK, was Dean for twelve or fourteen years. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 3. 13.]

1638. The deanery of Enachdune is returned as vacant. (FF.)

ARCHDEACONS.

1255. O'LAIDIGH, Archdeacon of Enachdune, died. [Four Masters.]
1311. THOMAS O'MALEY, M. A. was Archdeacon, having been presented by the Crown, sede vacante. In 1327 he was raised to the bishopric. [Cod. Clar. 36, and MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. F. 1. 18.]
1372. THOMAS BARRETT, Archdeacon, became Bishop of Elphin, in this year; and after governing that diocese thirty-two years, left a very high character behind him. [Ware.]
1523. EDMUND DE BURGO was Archdeacon. [Miscell. Archæol. vol. i. p. 75.]
- 1558-1572. STEPHEN KYRNAY (KEARNEY?) was Archdeacon. He is described as "a student residing at Oxford." [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 3. 13.] I do not know whether this be the same as Stephen Keroan (Kirwan) who follows.
1572. STEPHEN KEROVAN was a native of Galway, and was educated partly at Oxford, and partly at Paris. On returning from Paris he conformed to the Protestant religion, and was made Archdeacon of Enagh-dune. In 1573 he was raised to the bishopric of Kilmacduagh; and in 1582 was translated to Clonfert.
1591. CONLY O'KENEVAN (KIRWAN?) is called Archdeacon of Tuam and of Enachdune. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 3. 13.]

CANONS.

1328. MAURICE O'GIBELLAIN, LL. D. the greatest pluralist in Connaught, was a Canon. See more of him among the Canons of Tuam.

1487. WALTER BLAKE was a Canon. In this year he was advanced to the bishopric of Clonmacnois. [Ware, p. 174.] King Henry VII. wished to make him Archbishop of Tuam in 1504 or 1505, but the Pope refused his assent, and appointed another person. [O'Flaherty, p. 224-5.]

1487. JOHN DE BURGO, and NEHEMIAH MAGONELLY, are Canons, and Officials. The latter was also a Canon of Tuam.

1492. RICHARD (or RISTARD) DE BURGO, a member of the powerful family of that name, had possessed himself of a canonry, and likewise of the rectory and vicarage of Furarmor in this diocese. He wanted this last church to be erected into a prebend; but the metropolitan, the Archbishop of Tuam, would not give his consent. This Richard had also obtained canonries in the churches of Tuam and of Kilmacduagh. He was living in 1511. [O'Flaherty, pp. 168, 222, &c.]

1511. THOMAS MAC FLOYN, or MAC FLYN, was a Canon. [Ibid. p. 171.]

1523. WALTER CUSSIN is mentioned as a Canon both of Tuam and of Enachdune. [Miscell. Archæol. Soc. vol. i. p. 75.]

VICARS CHORAL.

It does not appear when these Vicars were first added to the cathedral; nor at what period they ceased. The only notice of them which I have met with is the following:

A. D. 1558-72(?) The four Vicars are returned as follows, in a manuscript in Trinity College, Dublin. [E. 3. 13.]

CLEMENT SKERETT is custos of two.

THADY M'NEALE.

JOHN M'NEALE.

SKYRETT, or SKERETT, was a Prebendary of Tuam at this time.

The See of Killala is believed to be one of those which owes its foundation to St. Patrick. One of his biographers relates, that in his progress through Connaught, he built a church at a pleasant place on the river Moy, and named it Kill-aladh. He appointed Muredach, one of his disciples, its first Bishop. This transaction must have taken place between the years 434 and 441.

In later times the prelates of this See were called by the territorial name, Bishops of "Tir-Amalgaid" (now Tyrawley); and sometimes of "Hy-Amalgaid," or "Hy Fiachra-mui," from the families of the district in which Killala is situate.

Very few traces of its earlier prelates are now to be found.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

I know of no ancient seal of this diocese remaining. The modern armorial bearings are engraved in Harris's Ware.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 434–441(?) ST. MUREDACH, a disciple of St. Patrick, and one of his companions, was appointed by him the first Bishop of his Church of Killala; and received consecration accordingly. We do not know the exact time of his appointment, nor how long he sat, nor who succeeded him for the next hundred years. O'Donovan is of opinion, that this Muireadach cannot have been the first Bishop, seeing that his received pedigree would place him nearly two centuries too late. [Hy-Fiachrach, p. 228.] Perhaps there were two prelates of the same name.

534 to 544? KELLACH, the son of a King of Connaught, is said to have been Bishop of Killala, between these years. “He was murdered by his fosterers, near a place called Adergoole, and the murderers were torn in pieces by wild horses.” [Harris.]

During this long hiatus in the line of prelates of Killala, we hear (from the poet Giolla Iosa Mor Mac Firbis), of seven Bishops of one noted family, the O'Maolfoghmhairs, descendants of King Laoghgaire, monarch of Ireland, in the fifth century; who, according to O'Donovan, were the Herenachs, or hereditary wardens, of the church of Killala. Their names are as follows; but we know nothing of the order of their succession, nor of the periods of their incumbency. [See Hy-Fiachrach, pp. 50, 51, 227, 228.]

MO CELE O'MAOLFOGHMHAIR.

AENGUS MAC CELE (O'M.)

MUIREADACH MAC CELE (O'M.)

AODH MAC CELE (O'M.)

AINMTHEACH MAC CELE (O'M.)

MAOLAN MAC CELE (O'M.)

FLANN MAC CELE (O'M.)

O'Donovan remarks, that these Mac Celes "of the Clann Cele" were probably the family now called Mac Hale, p. 50.

1151. O'MAOLFOGHMHAIR (probably one of the above-named seven), "called Bishop of Tir Amalgaidh and O'Fiachrach," died. [Ware.] This name is now Anglicised into Milford. [O'Donovan.]

1177. IMAR O'RUADHAIN (now RUANE), called "Bishop of O'Fiachrach," died.

11—? MAEL ISA MAC MAILIN is named as a Bishop, contemporary with one of the O'Dowda Chieftains who was slain in the year 1197. His diocese is not expressly named. O'Donovan conjectures that he may have been Archbishop of Tuam; but that See was then full and had been so nearly forty years. And besides, the territory of the O'Dowdas was situate in the dioceses of Killala and Achonry. [See Hy-Fiachrach, p. 159.]

1198. DONAT O'BEODA was Bishop. He died in 1205 or 1207.

1207. CORMAC O'TARPAID succeeded; and, according to Ware, died in 1226. But see the two following entries.

1214. O'CEALLAIGH, or O'KELLY, Bishop of Hy-Fiachrach, died. [Four Masters.]
1224. MAOLMUIRE O'CONMAIC, Bishop of Hy-Fiachrach, and of Kinel Hugh [Kilmacduagh?] died. [Ibid.]
1234. JOHN (or AENGUS) O'MAELEFGHMHAIIR died. [Ware.]
1253. GILLIKELLY O'RUADHAIN, his successor, died. On June 22nd the King granted his license to the Chapter to elect a new Bishop.
- 1253? JOHN O'LAIDIGH, a Dominican friar, was appointed Bishop; and was consecrated at Tuam, on the second Sunday in Lent. He died in 1275. [Four Masters.]
1275. Another JOHN O'LAIDIGH, or O'LOYNE, also a friar, appears to have succeeded (unless there be some confusion here between the names). He died in October, 1280. [Ibid.]
1281. DONAT O'FLAHERTY succeeded, by canonical election, and received confirmation from the King, on April 16th. He appears to have been a prelate greatly esteemed. He died at Dunboyne, on his journey to Dublin, in 1305-6; and was buried in St. Mary's Abbey, at Mullingar.
1306. JOHN TANKARD, Archdeacon of Killala, having been elected by the Dean and Chapter, pursuant to royal license, on June 13th, was confirmed in his office by the Archbishop of Tuam, on June 28th. We are not informed how long he sat.
1343. JOHN O'LAITHIN died; and the See remained vacant three years.
- 1346-7. WILLIAM O'DOWDA (O'DUBHDA), third son of Donnchad Mor, a member of a very high family in those parts, Chieftains of Hy-Fiachrach, and sometime Kings of Lower Connaught, succeeded to the bishopric; and having sworn fealty to the King, had his temporalities restored on March 25th. The Four Masters style him "a founder of churches and sanctuaries, a man eminent for his piety, almsgiving, and humanity." He died in 1350. The Annals of Lough Kee mention two of his sons. [See also the Genealogical Table in O'Donovan's Hy-Fiachrach.]

1350. ROBERT, a native of Waterford, succeeded. He sat till the year 1380 or 1381.

1381. BRIAN FITZ DONAGH, or DOWDA, was elected by the Dean and Chapter; but it does not appear that he was confirmed or consecrated; the Pope having determined to bestow the See on another person. Quære, whether Brian be the same as Cormac, a son of Donchadha Og O'Dowda, who is called Bishop of Killala in the Book of Lecan? [See Hy-Fiachrach, p. 48.]

1381. THOMAS LODOWIS, a Dominican Friar, was placed in the See in August, 1381, by Pope Urban VI. who coolly told King Richard II. that he had (during Robert's life) reserved this turn of presentation to himself, decreeing every thing vain which should be attempted contrary thereto; and, therefore, Robert being now dead, he had promoted Lodowis, whom he exhorts the King to take into his care and protection. [Harris.] This Bishop died about the close of the year 1388.

1389. THOMAS ORWELL, or HORETVEL, a Franciscan Friar, was advanced by the Pope on January 31st. In 1396 he is mentioned as being a suffragan of the See of Norwich. [Cole.] In 1400 he was translated from Killala to some other See; but whether in Ireland or England, does not appear.

1399-1400. THOMAS, Archdeacon of Killala, succeeded by the Pope's provision; and the King gave him back his temporalities on March 12th. His incumbency was very short.

1403. MUREDACH, surnamed CLERAGH, who had succeeded Thomas, died in this year.
1403. The name of his successor does not appear.
1416. O'HAINMCHE, or O'HANCKI, Dean of Killala, is said by Ware to have been promoted to the bishopric. But the Four Masters state, that he died this year, and never became Bishop.
- 14—. CONNOR O'CONNELL, or O'COINEAL, succeeded. He died in 1423.
1423. MARTIN succeeded Connor. He died in 1431. [Ware.] Perhaps this is the "O'Martin," whose death the Four Masters place in this year; but they call him Bishop of Clogher, in which diocese no such Prelate is known.
1431. THADY M'CREAGH was appointed, by provision of the Pope; and was pardoned for accepting the appointment, and was admitted to all the privileges of an English subject, by King Henry VI. in September of this year. [Rot. Pat. 10 Hen. VI.]
- 143—. MANUS FITZ-ULTAGH O'DOWDA, Archdeacon of Killala, was advanced to the bishopric. He died in 1436.
- 14—. CONNOR O'CONNELL, Bishop, was slain in 1461, by Manus, son of O'Dowda. [See above; there may be some confusion here between two Connor O'Connells.]
1461. DONAT O'CONOR, a Dominican Friar, was appointed Bishop. [See Hib. Domin. p. 475.]
- 14—. JOHN O'CASSIN was Bishop. He resigned the See, about 1490.
1493. THOMAS was Bishop in this year. He died in 1497.
1498. THOMAS, surnamed CLERAGH, or CLERK, Archdeacon of Sodor in the Isle of Mann, was advanced to this See, by the Pope, on June 3rd. He resigned in 1505, and retired to the rectory of Chedsey, in Somersetshire; where he died in 1508.

1505-6. MALACHI O'CLUAIN, or O'CLOWAN, was promoted by the Pope on February 12th. He was consecrated at Termon-feichan, by Octavian, Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Bishops of Derry and Clogher, on September 3rd, 1508. [Registr. Octavian.] We are not told the reason why the consecration was delayed so long. Possibly, the resignation of Thomas was forced, and incomplete in law; and it was deemed prudent to wait until his death.

1523. RICHARD BARRETT appears (by proxy), at a provincial Council holden at Galway this year, as Bishop of Killala. But neither the time of his coming in, nor of vacating, is known for certain.

1549. REDMUND O'GALLAGHER succeeded to the bishopric in this year. [MS. Tenison, in Trin. Coll. Dubl.] Can this be the person who, in the latter part of Queen Elizabeth's reign, appears as Bishop of Derry under the Pope's appointment? [See Derry diocese.]

1573(circa). OWEN O'GALLAGHER was Bishop of Killala about this year, at least before the year 1580. He had been appointed to it by the Pope. [Cod. Lambeth. DCXI.]

1585. OWEN O'CONNOR, Dean of Achonry, was elected Bishop, or had a custodiam of the See. [Rolls Office.] In this year he appears as party to an indenture made between Sir John Perrott the Lord Deputy, the Archbishop of Tuam, Sir Richard Bourke, and other landholders of the county of Mayo. He signs himself "Owen electe Killala." The indenture provided that he should have the town of Killala and six quarters of land, rent free. [Hardiman's Appendix to O'Flaherty's West Connaught, p. 331.] But the Bishop did not receive the letters patent of his full appointment to the See, until 1st of December, 1591. He then was consecrated, in that same month; and held the bishopric about sixteen years.

1607-8. MILER MAGRATH, Archbishop of Cashel, laid his rapacious hands upon the two remote sees of Killala and Achonry; and held them under a grant of commendam from King James, until his death in 1622. That grant bears date January 10th. It gave him other preferments also, in the dioceses of Elphin, Killala, and Achonry. He had a second grant, to the like effect, dated April 27th, 1611; and a third, dated February 24th, 1612-3. [Rot. Pat.]

KILLALA and ACHONRY.

1623. ARCHIBALD HAMILTON, D. D. a native of Scotland, educated at the University of Glasgow (second son of Sir Claud Hamilton of Cochonogh, Knight), was promoted to this See by patent dated May 21st; and was consecrated at Drogheda on June 29th. At the same time he received a grant of the bishopric of Achonry, in commendam; and from this period the two Sees have continued to be united. In 1630 Bishop Hamilton was translated to the archbishopric of Cashel; where having suffered great loss and personal danger in the rebellion of 1641, he retired to Sweden, and died at Stockholm, in the year 1659. [Lodge.]

1630. ARCHIBALD ADAIR, M. A. Dean of Raphoe, and a Prebendary of (Killala? FF.) succeeded to these sees, by two patents dated 22nd and 23rd of April. [Rolls Office.] He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on May 9th. On May 18th, 1640, he was deprived, by a sentence of the High Commission Court, on a charge of having uttered seditious words against "the Solemn League and Covenant." [See an account of this transaction in Carte's Life of Ormond, vol. i. p. 96.] Soon afterwards King Charles made him amends for this severe treatment, by promoting him to the bishopric of Waterford and Lismore.

1640. JOHN MAXWELL, D. D. Bishop of Ross, in Scotland, was translated to Killala by patent dated October 12th. His appointment having been delayed from some unknown cause, he received a second patent, dated February 26th, 1640-1. [Rot. 16 Car. I.] He was a native of Dumfriesshire; became Minister of Mortlick in Banffshire, and afterwards at Edinburgh. In 1633 he was made Bishop of Ross, a Privy Councillor in Scotland, and a Lord of Session. He was employed in the compilation of the Liturgy and Canons intended for Scotland, by Archbishop Laud; and from that circumstance became so unpopular, that he found it prudent to quit Scotland in March 1638-9. [Reid.] King Charles had a very high opinion of his abilities and honesty; and wished to make him Bishop of Elphin in 1639: but he had previously promised that bishopric to Dr. Tilson, Dean of Christ Church, Dublin. [Strafford's Letters, vol. ii. p. 369.]

While sitting at Killala, he was in great danger, with his wife and family, from the Rebels in 1641, near to Shruel; "but some of the Protestant gentry arrived in time to rescue them; and Bryan Kilkenny, Guardian of the Abbey of Ross, near Shruel, assisted in the rescue, and conveyed the Bishop's wife and children, with several other Protestants, to his monastery; and there entertained them with great civility during several days." [Account of the causes of the Irish Rebellion. 8vo. 1747.] But see Clanricard's Memoirs, folio, pp. 72, 73; and likewise, the particulars of the Bishop's sufferings and losses, as given by himself in a deposition made on examination, on 1st May, 1642, among Stearne's MSS. in Trinity College, Dublin.

After these misfortunes, he repaired to the King at Oxford, bearing with him a highly commendatory letter from the Marquess of Ormond. [Carte's Life and Letters, vol. iii.] In 1645 he was translated to the archbishopric of Tuam; and these sees remained vacant till the Restoration.

Bishop Maxwell was said to be a man of gravity and consummate learning; an excellent preacher; and a great asserter of the King's prerogative, which he defended in a treatise, called

1. "Sacrosancta Regum Majestas." 4to. Oxford, 1644.

Besides that work, he published (but without affixing his name):

2. Episcopacie not abjured in his Majesty's Realm of Scotland. 4to. 1641.

3. The burthen of Issachar; or, the tyrannical Power and Practices of the Presbyterian Government in Scotland. 4to. 1646.

This last was reprinted, in the collection called "the Phoenix." 8vo. London, 1707.

1660-1. HENRY HALL, D.D. was a native of Wells in Somersetshire, educated at Lincoln College, Oxford; he became Chaplain to the Marquess of Ormond, Lord Lieutenant; and was made Dean of Cork, and a Prebendary, and afterwards Præcentor, of Christ Church, Dublin. He was promoted to these sees by patent dated January 19th; and was consecrated at St. Patrick's, Dublin, with eleven other Bishops, on January 27th.

He did not long enjoy the episcopal dignity, dying at his palace on July 23rd, 1663. He was buried in his cathedral, where an inscription to his memory still remains.

166 $\frac{3}{4}$. THOMAS BAYLY, D. D. a native of the county of Rutland, received his education at Cambridge, and became an eminent Greek Scholar. Having been brought over to Ireland by Bishop Jeremy Taylor, he was made Dean of Down, and Archdeacon of Connor. His patent for these sees is dated March 1st. He was cousecrated at Tuam, on June 5th, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Clonfert. [See some account of him and his literary works under the diocese of Down.] He died at Killala on July 20, 1670; and was interred in the nave of his cathedral. His monumental stone has become much defaced. All of the inscription, which can now be read, is as follows:

Hic Alladensis requiescit Præsul
 THOMAS BAYLÆUS, S. T. D. [Literis ?]
 Græcis omnes superavit, et Omnimodâ doctrinâ claruit ce et Ecclesia fo
 um carcerem et
 In cælos evectus
 Dierum satur et hoc
 [Tumulo conditur?]

The figures of the date 1670 are in the four corners of the stone.

1670. THOMAS OTWAY, D. D. an Englishman, educated at Cambridge, became Chaplain to Baron Berkeley, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; and was promoted to these sees by patent dated November 16th. He was consecrated in Christ Church, Dublin, on 29th January following, by the Primate, assisted by the Archbishop of Dublin and the Bishops of Meath, Kildare, and Killaloe. He was considered to be an excellent, pious, and charitable Prelate. He rebuilt the decayed cathedral, almost entirely at his own cost; and left behind him other proofs of a generous spirit. In 1679 he was translated to the bishopric of Ossory, under which diocese see further particulars.

1679–80. JOHN SMITH, D. D. Dean of Limerick, succeeded by patent bearing date February 13th. He was born at Athboy, in the county of Meath. In 1635 he was Rector of Iniskeen and Rossory, in the diocese of Clogher. [Todd.] In 1664 he was made a Prebendary of Limerick, and Archdeacon of Ardfert; and in 1666 became Dean of Limerick. He was consecrated at Tuam on March 21st, by the Archbishop, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Clonfert. He was aged and infirm at the time of his promotion to the episcopal office; and died within the year of his consecration, viz. on 2nd of March, 1680–1. On a flat stone lying on the north-west of the communion table, in the cathedral of Killala, is the following inscription, beneath a shield charged with the arms of the See, and surmounted by a mitre:

“ Hic positæ reducem sperant Dominum et animam exuviæ Patris admodum in Domino venerabilis JOANNIS SMITH, D. D. Ecclesiarum Alladensis et Achadensis nuper proh dolor ! Episcopi; Pastoris vigilantissimi, concionatoris facundissimi, hominis integerrimi. Obiit 2 Martii. Ætatis suæ 76. Anno Domini. 1680.”

1681. WILLIAM SMITH, D. D. Dean of Dromore, was promoted to these sees, by patent dated May 2nd; and was consecrated at Tuam, on June 2nd, by the Archbishop, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Clonfert. Before the close of the year he was translated to Raphoe.

1681–2. RICHARD TENNISON (or TENISON) M. A. Dean of Clogher, was presented by patent dated February 18th; and was consecrated on the following day in Christ Church, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Meath, Raphoe, and Cloyne.

He was born at Carrickfergus, and is believed to have been a cousin of Dr. Tenison, Archbishop of Canterbury. His first instruction was at the school of Carrickfergus; from thence he went to St. Bee's, in Cumberland; and afterwards graduated in Trinity College, Dublin; of which, many years afterwards, he was appointed Vice-Chancellor. Having finished his college course, he removed to Trim, and became diocesan schoolmaster of the diocese of Meath. Subsequently he took Holy Orders, and was made Rector of Laracor, and of Agher in the diocese of Meath; and subsequently Dean of Clogher, Rector of Louth, and Vicar of Donoghmore, near Navan; having obtained these preferments through favour of the Earl of Essex, Lord Lieutenant, to whom he was Chaplain. In the troubles under King James II. he fled to England, with his wife and six children, and undertook the cure of St. Helen's parish in London; but returned to Ireland upon the accession of King William, and was translated to the see of Clogher. In 1697 he was once more translated, to Meath. While he was residing in London, he printed a Sermon preached to the Protestants of Ireland, in London, on October 23rd, the day of deliverance from the massacre of 1641. See others of his works, under the diocese of Meath. In the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth [Cod. 1029], is a Letter written by him to Archbishop Tenison of Canterbury (dated 14th September, 1696), upon the subject of the Dissenters in his diocese. He concludes, by saying: "I am now building a hermitage at Clogher; where I will constantly pray for your Grace and the Government, and end my life in a religious retirement."

1690-1. WILLIAM LLOYD, a native either of Flintshire, or of the Isle of Anglesey, received his education at Trinity College, Dublin, of which afterwards he was constituted a Fellow by Royal mandamus, on 11th August, 1684. In the same year he was made Præcentor of Killala, and Dean of Achonry. His patent for these Sees bears date February 28th; and he was consecrated in Christ Church, Dublin, on August 23rd, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Derry, Killaloe, and Clonfert (one prelate out of every province in Ireland).

He repaired at a great expense the See-house and gardens, which had been miserably despoiled during the wars under King James II. He died on December 11th, 1716; and was buried in his cathedral.

His monumental stone, which lies in the centre of the nave, is inscribed thus:

"Depositum GULIELMI [LLOYD] Episcopi Aladensis et Achadensis; qui obiit die Decembris undesimo. Anno Domini 1716."

The stone is much corroded.

The Bishop published:

1. A Sermon on John, viii. 13. 1695.

2. A Thanksgiving Sermon, on 1 Timothy, ii. 42.

8vo. London, 1715.

1716-7. HENRY DOWNES, D. D. a native of England, succeeded. He had been a member of New College, Oxford, and Vicar of Barrington, in the diocese of Ely. His patent bears date February 8th. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on May 12th, by the Archbishop of Tuam. In 1720 he was translated to Elphin, and from thence to Meath, and afterwards to Derry.

CONNAUGHT.]

2. An Assize Sermon, on 1 Timothy, i. 8. 4to. Oxford, 1708.

3. A Thanksgiving Sermon, on Psalm lxxvi. 10. 4to. London, 1719.

4. A Fast Sermon, on 2 Peter, iii. 15. 4to. London, 1720.

6. A Charity Sermon, on Eccles. xi. 10. 4to. Dublin, 1721.

7. A Sermon, on the Restoration of King Charles II. 29th May. ——— 1725.

1720. CHARLES COBBE, M. A. Dean of Ardagh, was promoted to these Sees by patent dated August 13th; and was consecrated on the next day in St. Patrick's, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Raphoe. In 1726 he was translated to Dromore; in 1731 to Kildare; and in 1742-3 to the archbishopric of Dublin.

The following creditable anecdote is related of the Bishop, in the late Mr. Austin Cooper's MS. additions to Ware: "Mr. Cobbe was domestic Chaplain to the Duke of Bolton, Lord Lieutenant, and was designed for the deanery of Killala (in May 1718), vacant by the death of Knapp; but instead of this, he was appointed Dean of Kilmacduagh, in June 1718 [quære this], and was offered the rectory of St. Mary's, Dublin, then fallen to the Crown, by lapse, thro' Dean Francis' [of Leighlin] omission to take out a Faculty before being presented to another benefice. But Dr. Cobbe generously refused it, as belonging to another man, who had fallen into an error but was guilty of no crime.

“However a King’s fisher was easily found for the purpose, one Dean Cross [of Ferns], who got possession of that Living.” [Todd’s MS.]

1726–7. ROBERT HOWARD, D. D. Dean of Ardagh, and Præcentor of Christ Church, Dublin, succeeded, by patent dated February 23rd; and was consecrated at Dunboyne, in the county of Meath, on March 19th, by the Primate, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Derry. In 1729 he was translated to Elphin.

Dr. Howard was born in October 1670; in 1703 became a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin; was appointed Vicar of St. Anne’s, Dublin, in November 1717; then Curate of St. Bride’s, Dublin; a Prebendary of St. Patrick’s, in December 1721; Dean of Ardagh, in April 1722; Chancellor of St. Patrick’s, Dublin, and Vicar of Finglas, in April 1723; and Præcentor of Christ Church, before the end of that year. See some account of his writings, under the diocese of Ardagh.

1729–30. ROBERT CLAYTON, D. D. was of English descent, but born in Dublin, and educated at Trinity College, of which he became a Fellow. He was promoted to these Sees by patent dated January 23rd; and was consecrated in St. Patrick’s, Dublin, on May 10th, by the Archbishop of Tuam. In 1735 he was translated to Cork, under which diocese see some notice of his character and writings. In 1745 he was again translated, and became Bishop of Clogher.

1735–6. MORDECAI CAREY, D. D. Bishop of Clonfert, was translated to these Sees by patent dated December 20th; and was enthroned by proxy at Achonry, on March 19th; and at Killala next day. [D. Reg.] I have found one Sermon published by him; it was preached before the Irish Protestant Schools. 4to. Dublin, 1744. The

- Bishop died at Killala, on 2nd October, 1751; and was buried in his cathedral, on the south side of the Communion table; where his monumental stone may be seen.
1752. RICHARD ROBINSON, D. D. (afterwards created Baron Rokeby) was a native of England, educated at Westminster school, and at Christ Church, Oxford. He was made a Prebendary of York; and came to Ireland as Chaplain to the Duke of Dorset, Lord Lieutenant. His patent for these Sees bears date January 17th. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on January 19th. In 1759 he was translated to Ferns; in 1761 to Kildare; and in 1765 to the Primacy. See some account of his character, under the Diocese of Armagh.
1759. SAMUEL HUTCHINSON, M. A. Dean of Dromore, and Archdeacon of Connor, succeeded by patent dated April 20th. He was consecrated in St. Anne's Church, Dublin, on April 22nd, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Derry. He died at Killala, on October 27th, 1780; and was there buried.
1781. WILLIAM CECIL PERY, M. A. (afterwards created Lord Glentworth) Dean of Derry, was raised to these Sees by patent dated February 5th. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on February 18th, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Clonfert and Killaloe. In 1784 he was translated to Limerick.
1784. WILLIAM PRESTON, M. A. a native of England, was educated at the school of Heversham, in Cumberland, and became a Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and afterwards Rector of Okeham, in Surrey. Being possessed of apt talents for public business, he acted for several years as Chargé d'Affaires of the British Government at the Courts of Vienna and of Naples, and afterwards was appointed Chaplain and Secretary to the Duke of Rutland, Lord Lieutenant; by whom he was promoted to these Sees on November 11th. He was consecrated before the close of the year.

In 1787 he was translated to Ferns; under which diocese see an anecdote honorable to his abilities and his sense of gratitude. Besides the monument raised to his memory in Ferns Cathedral, there is a second in the parish church of Heversham, adjoining to one which the Bishop had erected to his mother.

1787. JOHN LAW, D. D. Bishop of Clonfert, was translated to Killala by patent dated November 10th.

In 1795 he was translated to Elphin.

1795. JOHN PORTER, D. D. an Englishman, who was educated at Cambridge and became Regius Professor of Hebrew in that University, came to Ireland as Chaplain to Earl Camden, Lord Lieutenant. He was promoted to these Sees by patent dated June 5th; and was consecrated on June 7th, at the Castle Chapel, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Clonfert and Waterford. In 1798 he was translated to Clogher.

1798. JOSEPH STOCK, D. D. formerly a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, a Prebendary of Lismore, was promoted to these Sees by patent dated January 18th. He was consecrated in the Chapel of Trinity College, on January 28th, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Clonfert. In 1810 he was translated to Waterford; under which diocese see some account of his literary works.

1810. JAMES VERSCHOYLE, LL. D. Dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin, succeeded by patent dated May 2nd. He was consecrated on May 6th, in St. Patrick's, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Clonfert and Down. He presented to the Church of Killala a handsome service of Communion plate, and a valuable clock; besides expending large sums, out of his private purse, upon the repairs of the Cathedral; on the purchase of glebes for the clergy, and on the erection of school-houses; likewise on the judicious restoration of the venerable Round Tower of Killala, which had been seriously damaged by lightning during his incumbency.

He died on April 13th, 1834, aged 84; and was buried in the churchyard of Killala, where his tomb may be seen. Within the church, on the south side of the Communion Table, is a marble tablet to his memory, inscribed as follows:

Near this spot are deposited the remains of the Right Reverend JAMES VERSCHOYLE, LL. D. Lord Bishop of Killala and Achonry, over which dioceses he presided for nearly 24 years. He departed this life on the 13th day of April, 1834, in the 85th year of his age.

Upon Dr. Verschoyle's death, this bishopric became united to Tuam, by Act of Parliament! and the succeeding Prelates are to be found under the diocese of Tuam.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

The Chapter of Killala is mentioned under the year 1281. [Cod. Clarend. 46.] It appears to have consisted anciently of a Dean, Archdeacon, Provost, and two Prebendaries, viz. of Killuchanpy and Killanly. Afterwards, in the reign of Charles I. we find seven or eight churches styled prebendal. At present the number of Prebends is five.

SEAL.

The Chapter Seal, now in use, is dated 1754. It bears the figure of St. Patrick, holding a crozier in one hand and a shamrock in the other; and is inscribed, "The Seal of the Chapter of the Cathedral Church of Killala."

DEANS.

1416. — O'HANEKI was Dean. Ware states, that he was raised to the bishopric of Killala in this year. But the Annals of the Four Masters relate, not that he was made Bishop, but that he died, in this year.

1442. — MAC WILLIAM BARRETT was Dean, and died in this year. [Four Masters.] Probably he was a member of a family of Welsh extraction, which had settled in Tirawley. [See Hy Fiachrach, p. 325-6.]

I have found no other Deans for a period of 170 years.

1613. WILLIAM FLANAGAN, a creature of Archbishop Miler Magrath's; who also obtained for him the deanery of Achonry, and gave him a prebend in Cashel. He was presented on June 11th. [Rot. Pat.]

1628-9. WILLIAM BUCHANAN, M. A. (ordained Deacon and Priest on July 29th, 1627) was presented on February 21st [Lib. Mun.]; and installed in June following. (FF.) "Vir bonæ famæ, doctrinæ sufficientiæ, et optimæ conversationis." [Reg. Vis.] In 1635 he was made Dean of Achonry; and soon afterwards exchanged the Deanery of Killala for the Præcentorship of the same.

1635-6. ROBERT FORGIE, M. A. Præcentor, exchanged with Buchanan. He was presented on February 26th [Lib. Mun.]; and was instituted on June 9th. (FF.) The Regal Visitors give him a good character.

1664. HENRY DODWELL, D. D. (ordained Deacon at Tuam, in September, 1634, and Priest at Elphin, on June 12th, 1636). Patent dated July 7th. [Rolls Office.] He was instituted October 18th. (FF.) In 1666 the Crown presented him to the rectory of Rathfarnham, in the diocese of Dublin; and in the same year he was made Præcentor of Elphin.

1674. ALEXANDER MURRAY, D. D. presented May 20th [Lib. Mun.]; instituted July 2nd. (FF.)

1701. FRANCIS KNAPP, M. A. presented December 24th [Ibid.]; instituted Jannary 31st. (FF.) He was a native of Berkshire in England, was entered a member of St. John's College, Oxford, and afterwards became a Demy of Magdalene College. Antony à Wood mentions some verses of his composition. [Athenæ Oxon.] He died in 1717, or 1718, and was buried at the place of his birth, Chilton, near Abingdon. [Hewitt's Hundred of Compton.]

1718. JONATHAN SMEDLEY, M. A. presented September 6th [Lib. Mun.]; instituted September 11th. (FF.) In 1724 he resigned and was made Dean of Clogher; under which diocese see a list of his published works.

1724. PETER MATURIN, LL. D. Prebendary of Rosserkbeg; presented May 4th [Ibid.]; installed May 28th. (FF.) He was Vicar-General of Killala and of Achonry.

1741. THEOPHILUS BROCAS, M. A. Archdeacon of Killala, and a Prebendary of Clonfert, and likewise of Kilmacduagh; presented December 24th; instituted June 5th, 1742. (FF.) He died in 1770; and was buried at St. Anne's Church, Dublin.

1770. JOHN BROCAS, M. A. formerly a Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, was presented on June 30th [Ibid.]; and was instituted on July 11th. (FF.) He died in 1795.

1795. THOMAS VESEY DAWSON, D. D. presented June 11th [Ibid.]; instituted September 11th. (FF.)

1796. THOMAS THOMPSON, B. A. presented on March 16th [Ibid.]; instituted on the same day(?) [Reg. Tuam.] He died, of fever, at Castlebar, on November 10th, 1799.

Bishop Stock, in his "Killala Narrative," gives him a high character; and mentions that he and his wife and family were sheltered in the castle (palace) of Killala, during the French invasion in 1798.

1800. WALTER BLAKE KIRWAN, M. A. a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin; presented January 25th [Lib. Mun.]; instituted May 23rd. (FF.)

He was born, of Roman Catholic parents, in the town of Galway, in 1754; was educated at the Jesuit College of St. Omer's; and afterwards was removed to the University of Louvain, where he graduated and took Holy Orders. Having been appointed Chaplain to the Neapolitan Ambassador at the Court of London, he took up his residence in that city, and soon afterwards conformed to the Protestant Church. In 1787 he returned to Ireland; and, being permitted to exercise his profession in Dublin, speedily acquired extraordinary celebrity as an impassioned preacher, more especially of "charity sermons." In 1789 he was collated to the prebend of Howth, in St. Patrick's. He died, near Dublin, on the 27th of October, 1805. A volume of his Sermons was published in London, in 1816; to which is prefixed a sketch of his life.

1806. EDMUND BURTON, M. A. Archdeacon of Tuam, was presented on February 5th [Lib. Mun.]; instituted and installed on March 8th. [D. Reg.] He died in 1817.

1817. Hon. GEORGE GORE, M. A. (seventh son of the second Earl of Arran) was presented on August 21st; and was instituted and installed on October 4th. [D. Reg.] He died on August 27th, 1844, and was buried in the churchyard of Killala, in his brother's vault.

1844. JAMES COLLINS, D. D. Vicar of Denn, in the diocese of Kilmore; presented October 21st; instituted October 28th. [D. Reg.]

He has laudably exerted himself in the restoration of the choir, and the improvement of cathedral service; and is author of the following publications:

1. The Nature and Attributes of the Church. 8vo. Dublin, 1834.

2. Lectures on the principal Features of the United Church of England and Ireland. 8vo. Dublin, 1838.

3. Pastoral Tracts, &c., addressed to his Parishioners. 1842.

4. "A Voice from the Cathedral," a Letter to the Parishioners of Killala. 1845.

PROVOSTS, or PRÆCENTORS.

The older records denominate this officer Provost; but in the reign of James I. or Charles I. that name appears to have been disused, and that of Præcentor is substituted for it.

1232. "FACHTAN O'HALGAITH, Comharb of Drom Mochuda, and 'Official' of Hy-Fiachrach, a man who kept a house of hospitality for the entertainment of the learned, and for the relief of the sick and indigent, died." [Four Masters.] I doubt whether this Fachtan ought to be inserted here; but have determined to give him the benefit of the doubt.

1356. GREGORY was Provost in this year, when the Pope advanced him to the bishopric of Elphin. In 1372 he was made Archbishop of Tuam.

1454. The Provost of Killala is mentioned; but his name does not occur. [Dudley Firbisse's Annals, p. 239.]

15—. HENRY FITZSYMON, Provost, was deprived in 1593.
[Rot. Pat.]

1593. JAMES M'FARRELL, alias M'DERMOTT, was appointed by the Crown, on September 18th. [Rot. Pat.]

PRÆCENTORS.

1611. THOMAS PELLIE, or PELLY, was presented by the Crown, on September 25th. [Lib. Mun.]

1626. ROBERT FORGIE, M.A. (ordained Deacon and Priest, on November 24th, 1624) was presented by the Crown, by lapse, on July 5th; and was installed on August 4th.
[Reg. Vis.] He had been previously collated by the Bishop, on the 5th of the preceding January. But it would seem that that collation was deemed invalid. A high character is given to Forgie by the Regal Visitors.
In 1635-6 he was made Dean. He was basely murdered, together with several other clergymen, by the rebels, at the bridge of Shrute, on Sexagesima Sunday, 1641-2.

1635-6. WILLIAM BUCHANAN, the Dean, upon being made Dean of Achonry in this year, exchanged the deanery of Killala for the præcentorship. He was admitted on February 16th; and installed on April 30th. (FF.) We find him receiving a new collation or institution, in March 1637. [Turr. Berm.]

1639. ANDREW M'DOWELL, collated September 26th. (FF.)
He was also Præcentor of Lismore. He died in the next year.

1640. JOSEPH WARE, M.A. a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin; collated October 13th. (FF.) In 1642 he was made Dean of Elphin. He died in 1648; and probably the dignity remained vacant till the Restoration.

1661. RODOLPH, or RALPH HOLLINGWORTH, Dean of Achonry; collated April, or June, 15th. (FF.)
1662. JAMES VAUGHAN, D.D. Treasurer of Leighlin; collated April 2nd. (FF.) In the next week he was appointed Dean of Achonry, by an exchange with Hollingworth.
1684. WILLIAM LLOYD, a native of Wales, a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, was collated on September 11th. He was appointed Dean of Achonry at the same time. In 1690 he was raised to the See of Killala.
1691. SAMUEL FOLEY, B. D. was presented to this dignity, and to the deanery of Achonry, by patent dated April 4th. [Lib. Mun.] He was born at Clonmel, in the county of Tipperary, and became a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin. He was ordained in 1678. In 1689 he was made Chancellor of St. Patrick's, Dublin; and in that year had the honour of being attainted by King James II. In September 1694, he was raised to the bishopric of Down and Connor; but died in the following year.
- 1694-5. JOHN YEARD was appointed to the præcentorship, and the deanery of Achonry, by patent dated February 12th. [Lib. Mun.] He died in 1733.
- 1733-4. JONATHAN ROGERS, D. D. collated January 12th, and installed the same day. [D. Reg.] In the following May he was appointed a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin; and in 1741 he resigned both these preferments, and accepted a prebend in the cathedral of Armagh.
- 1741-2. ROBERT BERKELEY, M. A. afterwards D. D. (a younger brother of Dr. George Berkeley, Bishop of Cloyne), Treasurer of Cloyne, and Vicar-General of that diocese; collated January 29th. (FF.) He resigned in 1784.
1784. GEORGE BERKELEY, M. A. (a son of his predecessor?) a Vicar Choral of Cork; collated May 30th. [Reg. Armagh.] He died in 1804.

1804. THOMAS SUTTON, B. A. Prebendary of Killanly; collated August 16th; installed the same day. [D. Reg.] He died in 1842.

Upon his death, the appointment was suspended by the Privy Council, and the revenues were transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

ELECTED.

1845. SAMUEL STOCK, M. A. was elected by the Dean and Chapter to perform the duties of the Præcentor, on June 22nd. [D. Reg.]

ARCHDEACONS.

1235. ISAAC O'MAOLFOGHMHAIR, Archdeacon of Killala, died. [Four Masters.] See some account of his family at p. 61, suprà.
1257. MAOLPATRICK MAC CELE O'MAOLFOGHMHAIR, Archdeacon, "was slain." [Ibid.]
1281. SIMON was Archdeacon. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. F. 1. 18.]
1306. JOHN TANKARD, Archdeacon, was elected Bishop of Killala, by the Dean and Chapter, in this year. [Ware.]
1311. WILLIAM was Archdeacon. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. F. 1. 18.]
1400. THOMAS, the Archdeacon, was appointed Bishop of Killala by the Pope. [Ware.]
1431. MANUS FITZHUGH O'DOWDA, Archdeacon, was advanced to the bishopric of Killala. [Ware.]
1615. ANDREW MAGRATH (probably a son, or nephew, of Archbishop Miler Magrath) was Archdeacon. He was likewise Præcentor of Achonry. [Reg. Vis.]

1622. WALTER BERMINGHAM was appointed by the Crown on March 3rd. [Rot. Pat.] In 1628 we find him collated to a prebend in Tuam; and in 1630, holding the prebend of Errew, in this diocese.

1637. JOHN ARCHDALL was presented by the Crown, on November 1st. (Rolls Office). Early in the next year we find him instituted to the archdeaconry of Achonry.

1639. JOHN LAYNGE (the name is nearly obliterated); collated September 20th (FF.); probably Laynge, who was prebendary of Ardagh.

1641. See note (a).

1661. ROBERT BROWNE was collated to the archdeaconry and the prebend of Skryne, on September 2nd, or 11th. (FF.) Quære, if he held a prebend in the Cathedral of Raphoe in 1664? In 1670 he became a Prebendary of Achonry.

1673. ISAAC SMITH was admitted on November 20th. (FF.)

1685. MICHAEL JONES, M. A., was collated on April 10th (FF.) He appears again in 1708.

1719. SANKEY WINTER, M. A. Archdeacon of Achonry, appears. [V. B.] In 1724 he resigned, and was made Archdeacon of Kildare; and in the next year became dean of that cathedral.

(a) 1641. An "Archdeacon Gilbert" is spoken of at this year; but I cannot find any trace of his appointment. In a deposition made by the Rev. John Goldsmith, Rector of Burrishoole, respecting the proceedings of the rebels and Miles, Viscount Mayo, in 1641, he mentions an agreement signed by his Lordship and certain others, among whom are named Archdeacon Gilbert and Dean Varges. The latter, perhaps, may be intended for Dean Forgie, of Killala; but I cannot tell whether Gilbert was Archdeacon of that diocese, or of Tuam. [See Lodge's Peerage, by Archdall, vol. iv. p. 240.] He was one of the clergymen who were with the Bishop of Killala, at the bridge of Shrute, when the Bishop was wounded and several of the clergy were killed. Gilbert was stripped and plundered, but escaped with his life, [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl., F. 3. 2.]

- 1724-5. TOBIAS CAULFIELD, M. A. (a grandson of the second Baron Charlemont), Prebendary of Ballisadare, in Achonry Cathedral, was collated on January 28th (FF.), and installed on February 15th. [D. Reg.] He was at this time a Prebendary of Raphoe. He died in 1735.
1736. THEOPHILUS BROCAS, M. A. a prebendary of Clonfert; collated May 8th; admitted October 14th. [D. Reg.] In 1741-2, he was made Dean.
1742. HENRY CAREY, M. A. (son of Dr. Carey, Bishop of Killala), Prebendary of Lackan; collated June 9th (FF.)
1770. CHARLES HAWKES, B. A. Prebendary of Lackan; collated March 15th. (FF.)
1788. MARTIN SHERLOCK, M. A. collated October 28th (FF.)

1818. THOMAS KINGSBURY, M. A. collated February 21st (FF.); installed February 25th [D. Reg.] In 1820 he was collated to a prebend in Achonry. He died in 1846.
1847. GEORGE TRULOCK, M. A. a Prebendary of Achonry, Vicar-General of the diocese, was collated on January 4th. He died in September 25th of the same year.
1847. HON. ROBERT PLUNKET, M. A. (son of the first Baron Plunket, and brother of Dr. Plunket, Bishop of Tuam), was collated on December 7th.

PROVOSTS, see PRÆCENTORS, above.

- 1734-5. JOHN WALLS, M. A. was collated to this prebend, and to the archdeaconry of Achonry, on January 8th. [D. Reg.]
1755. WILLIAM EVELYN, M. A. was collated to the same archdeaconry and prebend, on March 27th. [D. Reg.]

1827. GEORGE TRULOCK, M. A. collated October 27th. [D. Reg.] He resigned in 1832, for the prebend of Ballysadare, in Achonry; and subsequently became Archdeacon of Killala.

ANCIENT PREBENDS.

In this diocese, as well as in others, we find several churches styled prebendal, which have ceased to be such in later times. The Regal Visitation Book of 1633 sets down the following prebends, in addition to the five still existing:

1. KILROE.

ARCHIBALD ADAIR, Prebendary, "absens studendi gratiâ."

Probably this was a son of Bishop Adair. He was ordained Deacon on May 14th, 1633; and was admitted on September 16th, 1633. (FF.)

2. KILLABEG, alias DRINAHAN.

Vacat; valet v.^s per annum.

3. FARRINHARPIE.

Vacat; valet x.^s per annum.

4. SKRINE, or SKREEN (SCRINIUM S^t ADAMNANI.)

This was an ancient church, celebrated for containing the shrine of Adamnan, the eminent Abbat of Hy. It appears to have been formerly a place of considerable importance. In the time of Queen Elizabeth the taxation of Skrine exceeded that of the deanery, viz. £5.

In 1630, MALCOLM HAMILTON, Archbishop of Cashel, was appointed by the Crown to the prebend of Skrine, with license to hold it in commendam, by patent dated August 3rd. [Rolls Office.] It would seem that this appointment was considered as irregular, or improper. He was installed on October 7th, 1630, by the Dean and Præcentor, "at nullus consensus Capituli." We find him, however, formally admitted afterwards, on November 30th, 1631. [Reg. Vis. Pr. O.]

CANONS,

WHOSE STALLS ARE NOT NAMED.

1327. MAURICE O'GIBELLAIN, an eminent man, who honoured no fewer than six Chapters of this province by belonging to them, was a Canon of Killala. See some notice of him in Tuam diocese.
1456. DONALD M'CUNOGLY, "gerens se pro Canonico Ecclesiæ Aladensis," is noticed at this year, in the Register of Archbishop Prene, at Armagh. This description of him is in the phrase usually adopted by the Popes, when speaking of any Prelates or Dignitaries whom they did not choose to recognise.

 MINOR SEES.

DONOGHMORE.

This is the name of a townland in the parish of Killala; on which it appears that there was a church built in the time of St. Patrick, the incumbent of which bore the title of Bishop. In one of the Lives of St. Patrick given by Colgan (Vita septima, sect. 83), we read "Venit Patricius ad ecclesiam de Domnach-mor, ubi est Episcopus Machua."

This saint was also patron of the Abbey of Moyne, near Killala. We do not know whether any of his successors at Donoghmore retained the episcopal rank and title. [Hy-Fiachrach, p. 466.]

KILMORE MOY.

This place, situate in the county of Mayo, and barony of Tirawley, is now a vicarage in the diocese of Killala, not far distant from the town of Ballina. It is reported to have been the see of a Bishop in the sixth century; but we hear of only one prelate.

SÆC. VI. CEALLACH, or KELLACH, the eldest son of Eoghan Bel, King of Connaught, had been educated by St. Kieran, of Clonmacnois; he entered into Holy Orders, and became a Bishop here; but afterwards resigned his bishopric, and retired to a hermitage near Loch Conn, at which place he was basely murdered, at the instigation of a rival, who knew him to be the true heir to the kingdom of Connaught. [O'Donovan's Hy-Fiachrach, pp. 415, 471.]

DIOCESE OF ACHONRY.

This see, anciently called the see of Achad-Chaoín, and Achad-Conair (from which last comes the modern contracted name Achonry), was founded about the year 530, by St. Finian, Bishop of Clonard; who erected here a monastery, and placed over it his friend and disciple, Nathy, or Dathy. The superiors of this house are occasionally styled Prelates, Abbats, or Bishops of Achad-Conair; and in some of the ancient annals they are called Bishops of Luigny, or Lieny, from the district in which Achonry is situated.

In the year 1623 this bishopric was permanently united to that of Killala.

As might well be expected, the list of early Prelates of this small and ancient diocese is sadly imperfect.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

I have not met with any ancient episcopal seal of this diocese. The modern one, used for Killala and Achonry united, has been engraved in Harris's Ware.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 530. ST. NATHY or DATHY (David?), who bore the additional titles of Cruimthir and of Comrah, was a disciple of St. Finian, who placed him over the church and monastery which he had erected here about this year. We have no information as to the duration of his incumbency, nor as to the names of his successors for upwards of six centuries from that time.

1152. MAELRUAN O'RUADAN was Bishop of Achonry, and present as such at the Synod of Kells. He is said to have been a man of wisdom, and of considerable reputation in his country. He sat eighteen years after this Synod, and died in 1170.

1214. GILLA NA NAOMH, or GELASIUS, O'RUADAN died in this year.

1214. CLEMENS O'SINADAIG succeeded. He died in 1219.

1219. CARUS O'TARPA, or CORMAC M'TARPA, or O'TAPPA, Abbat of Mellifont, became Bishop of Luigny. He died on January 25th, 1226, at Mellifont, and was buried in his abbey.

1226. GELISA (GIOLLA IOSA) O'CLERY succeeded. The Annals call him Bishop of Luigni. He died in 1230.

1231. THOMAS O'RUADAN succeeded. He died in 1237, and was buried in his cathedral.

1238. AENGUS O'CLUMAIN, whom John Hartry calls EUGENIUS O'CLUMHAIN, was consecrated to this see in 1238. He sat until 1250 or 1251; at which time, being aged and infirm, he resigned his bishopric, and retired to the Abbey of Boyle, where he died in 1263, or 1264. The Pope's letter, accepting his resignation, and authorizing the Archbishop of Tuam to license the Dean and Chapter to elect a successor, is dated "2nd November, anno Pontificatûs sexto." This must be either 1248 or 1258. See Baluzii Miscellanea, tom. i. (Todd's MS.)

1251. THOMAS O'MIACHAIN was elected, and received the King's assent and confirmation on June 20th. He died in the spring of 1265-6.

1266. DENIS O'MIACHAIN, Archdeacon of the diocese, was elected Bishop. The Annals of the Four Masters call him Thomas, and state that he was consecrated at Athenry on the Sunday before Christmas, in company with John, Bishop of Clonfert. He died in November, 1285, and was buried in his cathedral.

1286. BENEDICT was elected by the Chapter, in pursuance of the Royal license, dated April 29th. On the 27th of September in that year the King restored his temporalities. It is probable that this is Benedict O'Bran, O'Bragan, O'Braccain, or O'Brogan, who is called Bishop of Luigny, and who died about the close of the year 1311.

[Harris inserts here HENRY M'OIREACHTY, a Cistercian monk, who was Bishop of Derry at this time. The Annals of Connaught, and of the Four Masters, call him "Bishop of Connor;" quære, of "Achad Conair?" He may have been Bishop of Achonry previous to 1297; but this is a matter left in great uncertainty.]

1312. DAVID, of Kilheny, was elected Bishop. The King's writ for restoring his temporalities bears date August 1, 1312. In 1306 he held a benefice in the diocese of Kilmacduagh. [Taxation.] He died in 1344.

1344. MURCHARD M'MAEL MOI O'HARA, who had formerly been Abbat of Boyle, was elected Bishop, but died within the year. [Four Masters.] John Hartry's words are, "Murchertachus vel Murachus filius Moel Muadh O'Hara, qui foret Episcopus Luigniæ—quievit."

1348. DAVID, Bishop of Achonry, died. Others say he died in 1344. There appears to be a confusion between him and David, above mentioned.

1348-9. NICHOLAS O'HEDRAM, a Cistercian monk, succeeded, by the Pope's provision. He received his temporalities from the King, on March 19th. He governed the see about twenty-five years, and died in 1373.

1374. WILLIAM ANDREW, D. D., an Englishman, a Dominican Friar, was appointed by the Pope; and on August 1st, the King restored his temporalities to him. He was considered a man of great wisdom and learning, yet is not known to have left any literary remains behind him. In 1380 he was translated to the see of Meath.

1381. SIMON, a regular (of some order, not now known) appears to have succeeded; though both Ware and

Harris have omitted to notice him. He was a suffragan of the Bishop of Ely. "On December 15th, 1387, Thomas Arundel, Bishop of Ely, gave leave for the venerable father, brother 'Simon, Dei gratiâ Achadensis Episcopus,' to reconcile the church of Gamlingay, in Cambridgeshire, which had been polluted by the effusion of blood." [Cole.]

1396. "The Bishop O'HARA (believed to be Bishop of Achonry) died." [Four Masters.] Ware does not mention him, nor the next two prelates.
1398. THOMAS, son of Maurice M'Donagh, Bishop of Achonry, died. [Ibid.]
1409. BRYAN O'HARA, Bishop, died. [Ibid.]
1414. LAURENCE PETER JACOPIN, a Dominican Friar, was appointed by the Pope, by a bull dated July 6th. [Hib. Domin.]
- 141-. DONAT was Bishop, according to De Burgo; he died about the year 1424, as appears by the Papal bull appointing his successor. [Ibid.]
1424. RICHARD BELMER, B. D. a Dominican Friar, was appointed by the Pope, on April 12th. [Ibid.]
1435. O'HARA the Red, Bishop of Achonry, died. [Four Masters.]
1436. NICHOLAS O'DALY, a Dominican Friar, was promoted to this see, by the Pope, on September 3rd. [Hib. Dom.] Pope Eugenius IV. speaks of him as being a person of great virtue. [Todd's MSS.]
1442. THADY (quære, Abbat of Boyle?) died at Rome, this year.
1442. JAMES BLAKEDON, D. D. a Dominican Friar, succeeded, by the Pope's provision, dated October 15th. [Hib. Domin.] In 1452-3 he was translated to the see of Bangor, in North Wales. He was born at Blakedon, or Blackdon, in Somersetshire; and in 1443 became a suffragan of Bishop Backington of Bath and Wells. He was likewise Master of St. Catherine's Hospital, at Badminster, near Bristol, which was the mother church of all the Bristol churches in Somersetshire. He held this last appointment till his death on October 24th, 1464. [Hearne's Walter Hemingford, and Willis's Survey of Bangor.]

1452. CORNELIUS, Abbat of Boyle, succeeded Blakedon.

He governed the diocese twenty years, and died in 1472.

1473. ROBERT WELLYS, or WELLYL, a Franciscan Friar, was appointed by the Pope, on July 14th. The duration of his incumbency does not appear.

1488 or 1489. BERNARD, Bishop of Achonry, died.

1489. JOHN DE BUSTAMANTE, or BUCLAMANT, a Spanish Monk, Preceptor of the Convent of St. Catherine, at Toledo, was appointed Bishop by the Pope's provision, dated September 23rd. Ware is of opinion that he never came over to Ireland to visit his see.

14—. RICHARD is said to have succeeded. If so, he held his dignity but a very short time; for he died in 1492.

1492. THOMAS FORT, M. A. an Augustinian Monk of Bodmin, in Cornwall, was appointed Bishop by the Pope's provision, dated October 13th. In 1496 he was Prior of Huntingdon, in England.

1508. EUGENE O'FLANAGAN, B. D. a Dominican Friar, was appointed by Pope Julius II. on December 22nd; and the Pope recommended him to the King for his confirmation. [Hib. Domin.]

1523. CORMAC was Bishop in this year. He appears as a witness to the attestation of a will of Dominic Lynch of Galway. [See Miscell. Archæol. Soc. vol. i. p. 75.] We neither know the date of his appointment nor that of his vacating.

1562-3. OWEN (or EUGENE) O'HAIRT, or O'HARTE, Prior of the Dominican Abbey of Sligo, is said to have succeeded to this see, by an appointment from the Pope, dated January 28th. [Hib. Domin.] Queen Elizabeth appears to have neglected filling up this see, as well as some few others, during great part of her reign. In 1563 Eugene assisted at the Council of Trent. In 1585 we find him, as Bishop, a party to an indenture between the Lord Deputy Sir John Perrott, and the chief freeholders of the county of Sligo. [Hardiman's Appendix to O'Flaherty's West Connaught, p. 346.] He died in 1603, in the hundredth year of his age, and was buried in his cathedral of Achonry.

1607-8. MILER MAGRATH, Archbishop of Cashel, whose long arms reached to dioceses in every part of Ireland, obtained from King James I. a grant of these two sees, in commendam, and held them until his death in 1622.

From that period the see of Achonry has continued to be united to that of Killala; and its succeeding prelates will be found under the latter diocese.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

The constitution of this body appears to have varied, from time to time. Anciently, it comprised a Dean, Provost, Archdeacon, and five Prebendaries, namely, of Killaraght, Killoran, Doughorne, Tremoymlagh, and Kilfry. Several other churches are styled prebendal in the seventeenth century. At present the recognised prebends are only three.

1582. OWEN O'CONNOR, who had been educated in the University of Oxford, and was well skilled in the Irish language [Pococke MSS.], was presented on August 24th. [Lib. Mun.] In 1591 he was raised to the bishopric of Killala, which he held about sixteen years.

The Bishop having refused to institute him, on the ground that the benefice was already full, the matter was brought before the Archbishop of Tuam, at his metropolitanical Visitation; who gave him institution on September 14th, and he was installed on September 28th. [Prerog. Office.] On the same day, June 21st, the Crown presented him to the archdeaconry of Dromore.

DIOCESE OF ELPHIN.

THIS See is said to have been erected by St. Patrick, about the middle of the fifth century, at a place formerly called Imleach Ono, but which afterwards obtained the name of AILFIN, or Elphin. It seems probable that in process of time, certain smaller bishoprics (they were "goode chepe" in those days) were annexed to or absorbed in it; such as Ardcarne, Cashel-Irra, Drumcliffe, and Roscoman: these are now simple rectories within the diocese. Some of the old annalists occasionally call this See "Siol-Muireadach;" or, "the bishopric of East Connaught."

The name of the first Bishop has been preserved; but very few indeed of his successors can now be traced, before the invasion of the English in the twelfth century.

Till the year 1760, the Bishops of Elphin were styled Bishops "by Divine Providence."

ARMS OF THE SEE.

No ancient seal of this bishopric is now known. Harris has engraved that of Bishop Howard, who was appointed in 1729.

TAXATIONS.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 450 (about). ASICUS, a Monk, of austere habits of life, was appointed by St. Patrick the first Bishop of the church which he had founded at Elphin. He is said to have recommended himself to his patron, by his superior skill as an artificer in the working of metals. He died and was buried at Rathcunge, in Tirconnell, but we are not informed of the year of his decease.

From this time we have a long hiatus, of seven centuries, in the series.

1136-7. DOMNALT O'DUBHTHAI (O'DUFFY), Bishop of Elphin, died there at this time. Ware is of opinion that he was Bishop of Clonmacnois also.

1168. FLANAGAN O'DUBHTHAI, probably a member of the same family, died this year at the Abbey of Cong.

1174. MAELISA O'CONACHTAIN appears as Bishop of Elphin. In 1152 he assisted at the Synod of Kells, as Bishop of "East Connaught" (quære, Roscoman?) The Four Masters call him Bishop of "Siol Murray." He died in this year, 1174.

1195. FLORENCE M'RIAGAN (O'MAOLRUANA) O'MULRONY, a Cistercian Monk, was Bishop. He is said to have been descended from the Kings of Connaught. He was likewise Abbat of Boyle. He died in this year.

1214-5. ARDGALL O'CONOR, of the royal family of Connaught, Bishop of Elphin, died.

1224. DENIS O'MULKYRAN, called "Bishop of Ardcarne," died. Harris has inserted him in the series, because at that time Ardcarne was united to Elphin. Dr. Lanigan, following the Four Masters, affirms that he was not Bishop, but Archdeacon, of Ardcarne. [Eccl. Hist. vol. iv. p. 346.]

12—. ALAN, "Archdeacon of Mayo," became Bishop. We know no more concerning him.

1229. DENIS O'MORDA (or O'MOORE) is found resigning the bishopric of Elphin in this year. He died two years afterwards (on December 15th, 1231), on Trinity Island, in Lough Kee, where he had founded a hospital (hospitium) with the aid of Clarus M'Mullan, Archdeacon of Elphin, and the Canons thereof. [Annals of Boyle.]

1232. DONAT O'CONNOR held this bishopric about twelve years. He died on April 23rd, 1244, and was buried in the Abbey of Boyle. [Four Masters.]

1245. JOHN O'HUGRAIN, Archdeacon of Elphin, was elected Bishop by the Dean and Chapter, pursuant to a license directed to them by King Henry III. on June 12th, 1244. It appears that the Pope had likewise given the bishopric to the same person; but the Archbishop of Tuam, his metropolitan, refused to admit or consecrate him until he should have the King's assent. He vacated his see within a year, dying at the Monastery of Rath-Hugh, in the county of Westmeath. [Four Masters.]
1246. CORNELIUS RUFUS (CONNOR ROE), "son of the Comorban of Molua" (Bishop of Killaloe?) is said to have succeeded in this year, and to have died shortly afterwards.
1246. THOMAS (or TOMULTACH) O'CONNOR, Dean of Achonry, was elected Bishop, but without the King's license; this offence was afterwards forgiven, upon his humble petition. After sitting here thirteen years, he was translated to the archbishopric of Tuam in 1259.
1260. MILO, or MALACHI MAC THADY O'CONNOR, Archdeacon of Clonmacnois, having been elected by a majority of the Chapter, was consecrated at Dundalk, by the Archbishop of Armagh. But the Dean and others of the Chapter declared the election informal, and presented Thomas Macdermott to the King, as the person duly elected. The Archbishop of Tuam added his confirmation to this statement. The King, upon this representation, accepted Thomas, and directed the Archbishop of Tuam to consecrate him; which was done, and after Thomas had appealed to the Pope and had been acknowledged as rightful Bishop, the King ordered his temporalities to be restored to him. Milo still held possession; but it is probable that he would have been extruded. However, his death occurred at this conjuncture, and put an end to the dispute.

1262. THOMAS MAC FERRALL M'DERMOTT, the person named above, Abbat of Boyle, came into peaceable possession of the see upon Milo's death. He went through the form of a second election. It appears that his revenues were seized and detained by Hugh O'Connor, styled King of Connaught, and others; and that so much interest was taken in the matter that both the King of France and the Queen of Castile wrote letters to King Henry III. interceding for his protection of the Bishop. He sat only three years, dying in 1265.
1266. MAURICE M'NEAL O'CONNOR, a Dominican Friar, was elected by the Chapter, and was confirmed by the King, on April 23rd. He governed the see eighteen years, and died in 1284.
1284. AMHLAVE O'TOMULTY (O'CONNOR), having been elected by the Chapter, was consecrated as successor of Maurice; but he died very soon afterwards, having never been confirmed in his new dignity. [Four Masters.]
- 1285-6. GELASIUS (or GELISA) MAC INLIANAIG O'CONNOR (who is called LISACH O'CONNOR in some of the annals) became Bishop. He was Abbat of the Premonstratensian Monastery of Lough Kee. His confirmation in the see took place on October 5th, 1285; and he had his temporalities restored in the following March. He sat about eleven years, and died in 1296.
1296. MALACHI M'BRIEN M'DERMOTT, Abbat of Boyle, was elected, and received confirmation from the King. It seems that he met with some obstruction and delay in the recovery of his temporalities. He died at Rome, about the end of the year 1302, or the beginning of 1303. The Four Masters state that another person was elected Bishop at the same time, namely, Marianus O'Donabhair, a Dominican Friar; and that both of them went to Rome, to prosecute their claims.

1303. DONAT O'FLANAGAN succeeded Malachi, first as Abbat of Boyle, and afterwards as Bishop. His temporalities were given up to him on September 10th. He was a person in great reputation for wisdom. He died on the 22nd of May, or June, 1307, or 1308.
1308. CHARLES M'INLIANAIG O'CONNOR, Abbat of Lough Kee, was elected by one portion of the Chapter, and was consecrated to the see, at Armagh. But the Archbishop of Tuam espoused the cause of a rival candidate, and by the influence of the Pope succeeded in ousting O'Connor, who returned to his abbey and continued to govern it for more than thirty years.
1310. MALACHI MAC ÆDA, or MAC HUGH, one of the Canons, having been elected by a part of the Chapter, and being supported by his metropolitan, obtained the Pope's provision to this bishopric, and was afterwards accepted and confirmed by the King, on December 7th. In 1312, or 1313, he was translated to the archbishopric of Tuam.
- 1312-13. LAURENCE O'LAGHTNAN, Abbat of Boyle and a Canon of Elphin, succeeded by the Pope's provision, dated January 20th, and was consecrated in that year. He was for some time Official, or Vicar-General, of Tuam; and possibly he may be the same who was a Canon of Kilmacduagh in 1306. He died in 1325.
1326. JOHN O'FINASA, or O'FEENAGHTY (called in his patent JOHN DE ROSCOMAN), a Canon of Elphin, was elected by the Dean and Chapter; and having been accepted by the King, was consecrated by the Archbishop of Tuam. He received his temporalities from the King on the first of the following March. He died in 1354, and was buried in his cathedral.
- 1356-7. GREGORY, Provost of Killala, was appointed by the Pope's provision, dated February 27th. He had been consecrated previously for the bishopric of Down, which CONNAUGHT.]

the Pope bestowed on him upon a report that the then Bishop of Down had died. But this report proving to be incorrect, the Pope made him amends by presenting him to the see of Elphin. After sitting here sixteen years, he was translated to Tuam in 1372.

1372. THOMAS BARRETT, Archdeacon of Enachdune, was consecrated to this see. He appears to have been a person of high reputation. After governing the diocese thirty-two years, he died at Derry in 1404. Some say that he was buried there; but the Four Masters assert that he was interred at Arradh of Lough Con (i. e. Errew, in the parish of Crosmolina, county of Mayo).

1405. JOHN O'GRADA succeeded. We know little about him; except that he died in the year 1417.

[1410-4. THOMAS COLBY, D. D. a Carmelite Friar of Norwich, is believed to have been Bishop of this see, but we do not know the time or other particulars of his coming in. Pope John XXII. who sat from 1410 to 1414, calls him Bishop of Elphin, and gives him a provision for his translation to the see of Waterford. That claim of his, however, was successfully resisted by John Geese, the Bishop of Waterford in possession; and King Henry VI. in 1422 set the question at rest, by confirming Geese. Quære, might Colby have been coadjutor Bishop to Thomas Barrett, in the latter years of his life?]

1417-8. ROBERT FOSTEN, D. D. a Franciscan Friar, succeeded by the Pope's provision, on February 15th [or April 19th. King.] We have no further information concerning him; and it is not known whether he ever visited his see.

[1423. "THOMAS COLLEY (i. e. COLBY), Bishop of Elphin, died in this year." [Rot. Pat. 20 Hen. VI.] See above.]

14—. WILLIAM O'ETIGAN, or O'HETIGAN, was Bishop. We are not told at what time he was appointed. But it is said that in 1444 he went to Rome, with several others of the clergy of Connaught, and that most of them died there. [Four Masters.]

1450. CORNELIUS appears as Bishop. We hear of him again in 1453; but cannot trace his appointment, nor his vacating.

145-? JOHN was Bishop after Cornelius; as appears by the Papal bull appointing his successor Nicholas. [Hib. Domin.]

1458. NICHOLAS O'FLANAGAN, a Dominican Friar, was appointed by the Pope, on June 7th of this year, and filled the see for a very long time. After sitting here thirty-six years, feeling the approach of blindness and other infirmities of age, he offered to resign his bishopric in the year 1494, and recommended George Brann, Bishop of Dromore, for his successor. It appears, however, that Brann was not appointed until the year 1499; and Ware believed that the see was governed in the mean time by one Cornelius; and after his death, by Richard Mac Brien, a Dominican Friar.

1468 (Quære, 1498?) "CONOR O'MELAGHLIN, Bishop of Elphin, died." [Four Masters.] Probably this is the Cornelius above mentioned, and the year ought to be 1498.

1499. GEORGE BRANN, Bishop of Dromore, who was by birth an Athenian, was translated to Elphin, by a bull dated April 18th. He resigned his see in about six or seven years, but he lived until 1530; under which year the Four Masters state that "the Greek Bishop of Elphin died."

1506. CHRISTOPHER FISHER, an Englishman, educated at Oxford, was made Bishop about this time, and soon afterwards was appointed to a prebend in York. [Antony à Wood.] He was King Henry VIII.'s agent at Rome; and brought to that King a consecrated golden rose from the Pope in 1510. In 1505, being then at Paris, he entertained Erasmus at his house, and was a singular friend to Dean Colet. [Knight's Life of Erasmus.] He died in 1511.

151— THOMAS WALSH, who succeeded Fisher in his prebend at York, is named by Erasmus as having likewise been his successor in the see of Elphin, and being in possession of it in 1521. [Todd.]

15— JOHN MAX, a Premonstratensian monk, Abbat of Welbeck, and a Prebendary of York, is said to have been Bishop of Elphin, and to have died in 1536. He also held the abbey of Tichfield, in Hampshire, in commendam. [Cole.]

1544. CONAT O'SHIEL or O'SIAGHAL, Abbat of Assadara (Ballysadare), and chaplain to O'Donnell, the chief of O'Reilly's country, was appointed by Henry VIII. on March 23rd. [Rot. Pat.] The King had directed his congè d'élire in the usual form to the Dean and Chapter; but upon their refusal to elect Conat, he appointed him by his own authority. [Todd.] We do not know how long he sat.

15— BERNARD O'HIGGIN, a Dominican Friar, succeeded, by the Pope's provision. He was alive in 1552; but probably died in that year.

1552. ROLAND DE BURGO, Bishop of Clonfert, obtained from King Edward VI. the administration of this bishopric, in union with his own, during life. The grant bears date April 10th. He died at a very advanced age, in June 1580.

1580. THOMAS CHESTER, an Englishman (son of Sir William Chester, Knight, Sheriff, and afterwards Lord Mayor, of London, in which city his son was born), succeeded. He died at Killiathan (Killane, in the County Galway?), in June 1584. [See MS. Pedigree of the Chesters of Chicheley, Buckinghamshire, a family founded by an elder brother of this Prelate.]

1584. JOHN FITZJAMES LYNCH, B. A. a native of Galway, who was educated at New Inn Hall, Oxford, succeeded by patent dated November 4th. He is charged with having greatly wasted the property of his see by fee-farm grants, &c., and is said to have been a Protestant only in name. He resigned his bishopric on August 19th, 1611. He was buried in St. Nicholas' Church, at Galway.

1611. EDWARD KING, B. D. an Englishman (probably the same who was made Dean of Elphin in 1603), received his education in the University of Oxford, but appears afterwards to have become a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin. He was presented to this bishopric on November 15th, and was consecrated in the following month. He worthily undertook to repair the cathedral of Elphin; to build a solid residence for himself and his successors; and to recover some of the property which his predecessor had alienated from the see. Having in some degree effected this, he voluntarily resigned to his clergy the quarta pars episcopalis, which they had long been accustomed to pay. He governed the diocese with great reputation twenty-seven years and three months; and dying on March 8th, 1638-9, aged 63, was buried in his cathedral.

His tombstone, now set up against the interior wall of the vestry, is thus inscribed:

"Here lyeth the body of EDWARD KING, Doctor in Divinity, consecrated bishop of Elphin, anno Dni 1610, and continued Bp. in that See until the eighth of March 1638, on which day and yeare he dyed at the age of 63. This bishop much augmented the revenue of that See, was a constant Preacher of God's Word, and a man of great sanctity of life."

1639. HENRY TILSON, D.D. Dean of Christ Church, Dublin, was born at Halifax, in Yorkshire, in the year 1576.

He came to Ireland as Chaplain to the Earl of Strafford; who speaks of him as "a most worthy, honest, and religious person," [Nelson's Collections], and took several opportunities of advancing him in the Church. His Letter of Privy Seal was dated August 7th, and he was consecrated in Christ Church on September 23rd. In the troubles which followed the rebellion of 1641, his library and other property were plundered^(a), and he retired to England, "and settled at Southill, in the parish of Dewsbury, in Yorkshire. Being much straitened in circumstances, he employed himself in clerical duties, being allowed a salary by Sir Thomas Wentworth for preaching at Comberworth." He died on March 31st, 1655, and was buried in the Southill chapel of Dewsbury church, where a monument is erected to him, bearing this inscription:

(a) A curious illustration of the mixture of blind superstition with wild ferocity is given in one of the "Depositions" made by the sufferers in the rebellion of 1641, to the following effect, viz.:

In the churchyard of Elphin was an ancient "font-stone;" on which it was 1660-1. JOHN PARKER, B. D. was a native of Dublin, and in 1642 was a minor Canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral, and Chaplain to the Marquess of Ormond, Lord Lieutenant. In 1643 he succeeded his father as a Prebendary of Christ Church, and also of St. Patrick's. In 1642 he was made Dean of Killaloe. In 1649 he was stripped of his preferments, and thrown into prison, by Cromwell's party, on suspicion of being a spy of the Marquess of Ormond, and upon his release followed that nobleman to England. At the Restoration he returned to Ireland; and was presented to this see by patent dated January 19th; and was consecrated, with the other Prelates, in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, on January 27th. He immediately began to repair his cathedral church and his own palace, which had been utterly neglected during the usurpation of Cromwell. In 1667 he was advanced to the archbishopric of Tuam. Bishop Parker printed a Sermon on 2 Samuel, xix. 14, preached before the houses of Parliament, 4to. Dublin, 1663.

1667. JOHN HODSON, D. D. a native of England, became Dean of Clogher in 1661, and was raised to this see by patent dated August 10th. He was consecrated in St. Nicholas' Church, at Galway, on September 8th, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Clonfert; and was enthroned at Elphin on September 12th. [D. Reg.] He proved himself a warm benefactor to Elphin and to his see; for, by an indenture dated 1685, he vested certain lands in the county of Cavan, in trustees, to be holden for ever at a pepper-commonly believed that St. Patrick had left the print of his knee. The rebels, in 1641, wantonly destroyed this font; and when afterwards they attacked the Bishop's castle, and were repulsed with loss, they attributed their failure in the bloody enterprise solely to the crime which they had committed against the Virgin Mary, in breaking that stone! [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. F. 3. 2.]

corn rent; the one moiety of the rents to be employed in maintaining a grammar-school in Elphin for the benefit of the inhabitants, and especially for teaching the children of the poor gratuitously; the schoolmaster to be approved by the Bishop. The other moiety was destined for restoring and adorning the cathedral of Elphin, in such manner as the Bishop and the Dean and Chapter shall think fit; and lastly, he directed that the oversight of the trusts should vest in the Bishop and the Dean and Chapter. At the present time each moiety amounts to twenty pounds per annum.

Bishop Hodson died on February 18th, 1685-6, and was buried in his cathedral. A tombstone, which formerly lay in the nave of the church, but which, with others, was removed not long ago to the wall of the vestry, for better preservation, bears the following inscription to his memory:

Depositum JOHANIS HODSON

anno Domini 1685
et ætatis suæ 77

onis.

After his death King James distributed the revenues of the see among his Popish Bishops.

1691. SIMON DIGBY, D. D. Bishop of Limerick, was translated to Elphin, by patent dated January 12th. He presided over this diocese thirty years. He died at his house at Lacca on April 7th, 1720, and was buried in the church of Tosrara (Mount Talbot), in the county of Roscommon. He was not unmindful of the poor in his last will. Walpole, in his "Anecdotes of Painting," speaks of the Bishop as being "a good limner."

1720. HENRY DOWNES, D. D. Bishop of Killala, succeeded by a patent dated in June. In 1724 he was translated to Meath, and afterwards became Bishop of Derry.

1724. THEOPHILUS BOLTON, D. D. Bishop of Clonfert, was translated to Elphin by patent dated April 16th. In December, 1729, he was advanced to the archbishopric of Cashel; under which diocese see a further account of him.

1729-30. ROBERT HOWARD, D. D. Bishop of Killala, succeeded by patent, dated January 13th. He was enthroned at Elphin on June 26th. [D. Reg.] He was lineal ancestor of the present Earls of Wicklow, his son having been created Viscount Wicklow. He died on April 3rd, 1740, aged 69, and was buried in St. Bride's Church, Dublin.

1740. EDWARD SYNGE, D. D. Bishop of Ferns, &c., was translated to Elphin by patent dated May 15th, and was enthroned on ——. He died at Dublin on January 27th, 1762, and was buried in St. Patrick's churchyard.

1762. WILLIAM GORE, D. D. Bishop of Clonfert, succeeded Dr. Synge. His patent bears date May 3rd. He was enthroned on May 14th. [D. Reg.] In 1772 he was translated to the see of Limerick.

1772. JEMMET BROWNE, D. D. Bishop of Cork, &c., was translated to Elphin by patent dated March 6th. In 1775, he was again moved, and became Archbishop of Tuam.

1775. CHARLES DODGSON, D. D. Bishop of Ossory, succeeded. His patent is dated April 12th. He died in Dublin, on January 21st, 1795, and was buried at St. Bridget's, in that city.

s

1795. JOHN LAW, Bishop of Killala, was moved to Elphin by patent dated March 27th. He was enthroned in the following month. He died in Dublin on March 19th, 1810, leaving no issue, and was buried in Trinity College chapel. During his incumbency at Elphin he printed a Sermon preached before the Incorporated Society of Protestant Schools. 4to. Dublin, 1796.

1810. HON. POWER TRENCH, D. D. Bishop of Waterford, was translated to Elphin by patent dated April 30th. He sat here nine years, and then was made Archbishop of Tuam.

1819. JOHN LESLIE, D. D. Bishop of Dromore, succeeded. The King's letter for his translation bears date November 16th. He was enthroned by proxy on December 22nd. [D. Reg.] The Bishop has been a liberal contributor to the repairs and improvements of his cathedral.

An Act of Parliament, in 1834, directed that this see should be annexed to that of Kilmore upon the next avoidance; and upon the Bishop of Kilmore's death, in 1841, Bishop Leslie became Bishop of Kilmore, Elphin, and Ardagh.

Future Bishops will be noticed under the diocese of Kilmore.

MINOR SEES.

1. DRUMCLIFFE.

This place, which is now a mere village, in the county of Sligo, was formerly a considerable town, and a Bishop's see. The see was afterwards united either to that of Roscom-mon or Elphin. St. Columba founded an abbey here in the year 590; and it is probable that some of the Abbats were also Bishops of Drumcliffe. None of their names, however, as holders of that dignity, have come down to us.

ARCHDEACONS.

The following Archdeacons of this small diocese are mentioned in Archdall's Monasticon Hibernicum.

950. FLANN O'BECAIN, Archdeacon of Drumcliffe, a learned and celebrated scribe, died.

1029. AENGUS O'HOENGUSA, Archdeacon, perished by an accidental fire, in a neighbouring island, called Inislanne.

1053. MURCHADH O'BEOLLAIN, Archdeacon, died.

1225. AMLAVE O'BEOLLAIN, Archdeacon, died; a man of extraordinary erudition, and in general esteem for piety, wisdom, and unbounded hospitality.

2. ARDCARNE.

This place, which is situate in the county of Roscommon, was anciently a Bishop's see; but became united either to that of Roscommon or Elphin, at some period now unknown. We cannot trace any of its Prelates, except that Archdall cites, from the Four Masters,

523. "BEAIDH, Bishop of Ardcarne, died in this year."

ARCHDEACONS.

1225. DIONYSIUS or DENIS O'MULKYRAN, Archdeacon of Ardcarne, died. But see above, p. 118. The rectory of Ardcarne is now attached to the archdeaconry of Elphin.

3. CASHEL-IRRA.

This small village, near Sligo, is said to have been formerly a Bishop's see. Its first Bishop was St. Bron, a disciple of St. Patrick, who died in the year 509, or 511, or 512. St. Biteus, son of Asicus, another of St. Patrick's disciples, was also Bishop here. See Harris's Ware, p. 464, and Archdall's Monasticon, p. 629. No others of its Prelates are known.

4. ROSCOMMON.

The sees of Roscommon and Elphin were united shortly before the arrival of the English in Ireland, in the twelfth century. We cannot now trace the succession of Bishops of Roscommon. Archdall mentions that one of the Abbats of the monastery founded here in the sixth century was also Bishop. He states that "the Abbot Siedal, Siadhail, or Sedulius, who was also called Bishop of Roscommon, died in the year 813 or 816."

ARCHDEACONS.

1234. GILLE NA NAOMH M'ARTHUR O'BRUIN, "Archdeacon of Roscommon, a venerable priest, died." [Annals of Boyle.]

5. TIGHBOHIN.

Archdall, from Colgan, relates that this (now a prebendal church) was once a Bishop's see, and contained a celebrated school. A. D. 640, St. Baithen was Bishop. We know none of his successors.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

Harris remarks, that in some old Visitation Books he found the Chapter of Elphin described as consisting of a Dean, Archdeacon, Provost, and twelve Prebendaries. At present there is no Provost, but a Præcentor in his place; and the twelve prebends are reduced to eight. I have not ascertained at what period this change of the constitution took place. In a paper which remains on record in the diocesan registry, entitled "The Answer of the Dean and Chapter of Elphin to the Inquiries of his Grace Richard, Archbishop of Tuam," dated 1638, it is stated: "There are a Dean, Chantor, Archdeacon, and eight Prebendaries; and we have heard that there are four more belonging to the said church, viz.: Kilbegnat, Clontonogher, Drumcliffe, and Killuckin. We have no Vicars Choral(a), Choiristers, nor Organist, nor means to maintain them. The body of the cathedral is used as a parochial church," &c. &c.

The earliest period at which I have found mention of the Dean and Chapter is in the beginning of the thirteenth century, under the incumbency of Bishop Alan.

The present Chapter Seal is quite a modern one.

(a) Yet it would seem that at some former period there had been Vicars Choral; for the Annals of Dudley Firbisse record the death of Mairgeas O'Flanagan, chief of the choir, in 1461; and also of Gilchrist M'Edigan, Vicar of St. Patrick's, and one of the choir, in 1463.

DEANS.

1240. GILLA NA NAOMH O'DREAIN, "Dean of the Abbey of Ardcarne, (query, Dean of Elphin?) died." [D'Alton's Boyle.] The Four Masters call him not Dean, but Archdeacon.
1258. GILCHREEST O'CARMACAIN (O'CORMACAIN), Dean of Elphin, died. [Four Masters.]
1271. SIMON MAGRATH, Dean of Ardcarne, died. [Four Masters.] N.B. Concerning the see of Ardcarne, see above, p. 131.
1444. O'FLANAGAN was Dean (most probably of Elphin). See the Annals of Dudley Firbisse, ad ann. [Miscell. Archæol. Soc.]
1487. MALACHI O'FLANAGAN died. [Four Masters.]
1487. THOMAS O'HEIDIGEIN, or EIDIGEIN, or EDIGEN, succeeded. [Ibid.]
- 1591 (circa). THOMAS BURKE, or BOURKE, was Dean. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. E. 3. 14.] He died in 1603.

(a) Charles O'Connor, of Belanagare, has recorded that "the clergyman delineated in the poem of 'The Deserted Village,' is the Rev. Thomas Contarine (the poet's uncle), son to one of the Contarini family in Venice, the friend and companion of Bishop Berkeley, a man of talent and great goodness of heart. The old soldier is Major M'Dermott, of Emlagh, in the county of Roscommon: the picture is drawn true to life."—O'Connor's Memoirs of the Life of O'Connor, 8vo. Dublin, 1796, p. 186.

PRÆCENTORS.

This dignity is not mentioned by name in the earlier accounts of the Chapter. Perhaps the following sentence in the Annals of Dudley Firbisse may prove that there was a Præcentor at that time. If not, O'Flanagan must have been a Vicar Choral.

1461. "MUIRGEAS WILLIAM, O'FLANAGAN'S son, Priest of St. Kill, and Chief of the Quire in Elphin, quievit." [Firbisse, p. 243.]

1635. JOSEPH WARE, M. A. was admitted on June 10th. (FF.) In 1636 he became a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin; in 1640 was made Præcentor of Killala; and in 1642 was presented to the deanery of Elphin.

1797. RICHARD WYNNE, B. A. collated January 9th. [D. Reg.] In 1818 he was appointed Præcentor of St. Patrick's, Dublin. Upon his death in 1835, the appointment was suspended by the Privy Council, and the revenues were transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

PREBENDARIES.

I do not find at what period distinct prebends were first assigned to the Canons. It appears, as stated before at p. 133, that anciently the prebends were twelve in number. Probably some of them may have been afterwards united to the several dignities, as we know that Kil-lukin was attached to the archdeaconry; while the rest have fallen into lay hands, and have become entirely lost to the Church.

1634. MILO SUMNER was instituted on August 20th. (FF.) In 1661 we find him Archdeacon of Clogher.

1666. EDMUND ROWLATT, a Prebendary of Killala, appears. In 1668 he was appointed Archdeacon of Achonry, but retained his prebend to the year 1684, or longer. His next successor is unknown.

After his death the appointment to the prebend was suspended by the Privy Council; and some portion of the revenues was disappropriated, and transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

ELECTED.

1841. ROBERT CAGE, or CADGE, M. A. I find, that he was collated by the Bishop on November 13th, and was installed the same day. Also, that he was afterwards elected by the Dean and Chapter, on March 16th, 1842. [Chapt. Book.]

5. KILCOOLE (KILCOWLE, or KILCULLY.)

1615. HUGH BREHAN (?) is named as Prebendary. [Reg. Vis.]

1619. HUGH STANLEY was admitted on November 9th. (FF.)
1627. WILLIAM ROYCROFT, or RYCROFT, B. A. formerly Prebendary of Tirbrien, was collated November 21st; installed November 27th. The Royal Visitors call him "a good Divine and Preacher." [Prerog. Office.]
1661. THOMAS CROFTON, M. A. appears. He had been ordained Deacon at Elphin in September 1641; and Priest, at Dublin, in March 1641-2. [D. Reg.] In 1661-2 he became a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin; and in 1667 was made Dean of Elphin.
- 1667-8. EDWARD NICHOLSON, B. A. was collated on March 9th. (FF.) In 1674 he was made a Prebendary of Tuam. It does not appear how long he retained this prebend. In 1704 we find him one of the Proctors to Convocation for the clergy of Elphin.
- 1709-10. JOHN BULLINGBROOKE, M. A. was collated on March 1st. (FF.)
1729. MICHAEL GRIFFIN, M. A. collated May 26th (FF.); installed June 2nd. [D. Reg.] He was the diocesan schoolmaster. He died in 1743.
1743. OLIVER CARY or CAREY (ordained Deacon in September 1729) was collated June 25th. (FF.) In 1759 the Crown presented him to the rectory of Enniscorthy. In 1767 he resigned his prebend, and was made Præcentor of Ferns.
1767. WILLIAM DIGBY, M. A. Dean of Clonfert, was collated June 25th; installed same day. [D. Reg.] In 1769 he was presented to the prebend of Geashill, in the Cathedral of Kildare. After holding his prebend of Kilcoole forty-two years, he resigned it in 1809.
1809. OLIVER CARY, Jun. B. A. Archdeacon of this diocese, exchanged his dignity for this prebend. He was collated September 16th; he died in England, on May 24th, 1846, aged ninety-four years.

1615. "MAURICE GRIFFITH, Armiger(a), Præbendarius Elphin," is named in Mason's Parochial Survey of Killukin parish, vol. ii. Quære, if it was this prebend which he held? He was a layman.

1628. GILBERT SEABROOK, M. A. of Broadway Hall, Oxford, who had been ordained Deacon and Priest, on December 19th, 1619, was presented by the Crown, on August 15th. [Lib. Mun.] He was installed on August 29th, or September 4th. [Prerog. Office.] He was Chaplain to the Lord Chancellor. The Royal Visitors call him "a good Divine and a good Preacher." N. B. There appears to be some confusion here, between this prebend and that of Artagh, in the diocese of Killala. See above, p. 90.

1661. ROBERT BROWNE is named as one of the Prebendaries, in a book remaining in the Diocesan Registry; but his stall is not mentioned. Probably it was either this, or Kilmacallan, or perhaps Drumcliffe. A Robert Browne was Archdeacon of Killala in this year. In 1664 Browne appears to have become a Prebendary of Raphoe.

(a) On this expression used of a clergyman, see note upon John Lancaster, Præcentor of Lismore, in the volume containing the Province of Munster.

ANCIENT PREBENDS.

In the Regal Visitation Book of 1615, the following prebends are stated to be "of late times usurped by Laymen."

DRUMCLIFFE, by the Earl of Clanricard.

KILMACALLAN (afterwards recovered), by Sir John King.

CLONCONOGHER,	} by Henry Molloy.	} In 1633 Sir George Malbey was stated to be in possession of these three.
or BASLICK,
OWRAN (afterwards recovered),	by do.
KILBEGNETT,	by ditto.

KILLUCKIN, by Maurice Griffith, Esq.

TERMONBARRY (afterwards recovered), by Robert Nugent, Esq.

BASLICK, OR CLONCONNOGHER, OR CLONTOMOGHER.

The rectory of this church is now in lay hands; and the vicarage is united to the prebend of Ballintubber.

1623. ROBERT MAWE was presented by the Crown, on July 1st, to the prebend of Clanconogher, alias Baslicke; and at the same time to the prebend of Kilbeggnet. [Rot. Pat. 21 Jac. I.] In 1625 Mawe was made Prebendary of Ballintubber.

1637-8. WILLIAM FREEMAN, M. A. was presented by the Crown, on February 27th. [Rolls Office.]

1669. The Bishop reports, that there is no such prebend. [D. Reg.]

DRUMCLIFFE.

It has been stated above, p. 116, that in ancient times Drumcliffe was a Bishop's see. In 1615 it was called a prebend, and was said to have been taken possession of by the Earl of Clanricard.

1622. WILLIAM ROYCROFT, or RYCROFT, Prebendary of Tirbrien, was presented by the Crown, by lapse, to this prebend, on June 6th. [Lib. Mun.]

1661. ROBERT BROWNE, M. A. is called Prebendary. [Dioc. Reg.] See above, p. 152.

1669. The Bishop reports to the Barons of the Exchequer, that there is no such prebend. [Ibid.]

KILBEGNETT.

This former prebend was, in 1615, in the hands of a layman; and again in 1633. The rectory still continues so. The church is no longer prebendal.

1623. ROBERT MAWE was presented by the Crown to this prebend, and to that of Baslick, on July 1st. [Lib. Mun.]

1633. RICHARD THORPE was presented by the Crown, on December 9th. [Rolls Office.]

1669. The Bishop reports to the Exchequer, that there is no such prebend.

KILLUCKIN.

In 1615 this prebend was stated to be in lay hands. In 1633 it was attached to the archdeaconry.

1635. WILLIAM NEWPORT was presented by the Crown, on December 4th. [Rolls Office.]

1669. The Bishop reports that Killuckin is the prebend of the Archdeacon; and such it continues at this day.

This bishopric is believed to have been founded in the sixth century, by St. Brendan (not St. Brendan of Birr, but a contemporary and fellow-student). He erected the Abbey of Clonfert in the year 558; conferred on it the episcopal dignity, and either himself became its first Bishop, or, as others say, placed Mo-ena, one of his disciples, in that post. As several of the later prelates are styled "successors of Brendan," and not "successors of Mo-ena," perhaps the former account is the correct one. The list of early Bishops is sadly imperfect. Indeed the ancient diocesan records have been long lost. Peter White, on being appointed Registrar in the year 1717, entered a notice in writing, that "he found no records, nor anything else, in the Registry."

ARMS OF THE SEE.

The Seal of Bishop Whitcombe, dated 1735, has been engraved in Harris's Ware. The Royal Irish Academy possesses the original seal of Bishop Young, 1799; also a very ancient Seal of a Bishop Charles, of whom we have no account, inscribed

S. CARULI CLONFERTENSIS EPI.

The consistorial seal at present in use is an ancient one.

TAXATIONS OF THE SEE AND OF THE CHAPTER.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 558. ST. BRENDAN (of whom see above) founded an abbey at Clonfert, near the river Shannon, and for some time governed it. Afterwards he procured episcopal rank for it, and is believed to have been its first Bishop, but to have resigned that office some years before his death, which took place at Enachdune, on May 16th, A. D. 577, when he was ninety-three years of age. He was buried at Clonfert. Brendan is said to have composed the following works:

1. Confessio Christiana.
2. Charta Cœlestis Hereditatis.
3. Regula Monachorum.
4. De Fortunatis Insulis.
5. Revelationes de futuris Temporibus.
6. Epistolæ ad Populares.
7. S. Brigittæ Virtutes et Miracula.

571. MOENA, or MOYNEAN, who was appointed Bishop by the founder, St. Brendan, died on March 1st, in 571 or 572, while his patron was yet alive. The Annals of Ulster call him "Bishop of Clonfert-Brenain."

600 (circa). FINTAN, who, from his love of music, obtained the surname of CORACH, is said to have been Abbat and Bishop of Clonfert. Nothing certain appears to be known of him; but tradition asserted that he lived to the extraordinary age of 135 years.

620. ST. SENACH GARBH succeeded Fintan; but whether as Abbat or Bishop, does not clearly appear. He died in 620.

620. ST. COLMAN, the son of Congal, is believed to have succeeded Senach in the abbacy; perhaps in the bishopric also. He is stated to have died in the same year as his predecessor.

6—. COMIN, surnamed Foda, a man of the noble family of the Hy Fiachrach, was appointed Bishop by the King of Connaught. He governed his diocese with much wisdom. His death took place on November 12th, 662. A hymn, supposed to be of his composition, is mentioned by Ware.

825. RUTMEL, who is styled "Prince and Bishop of Clonfert," died.

861. CATHAL M'CORMAC, "Bishop of Clonfert Brendain," died.

921. CORMAC M'ÆDAIN died.

951. CIARAN O'GABHLA died. [Four Masters.]

1166. GILLA MAC AIBLIN O'HANNICADA died. He is called "Comorban of Brendan;" and it seems uncertain whether he was Bishop of Clonfert or of Ardfert, in Kerry, where St. Brendan was regarded as chief patron.

1170 (?). CEALACHAN O'DARMODY is said to have been Bishop. [Ma Geoghegan.]

1171. PETER O'MORDHAI, or O'MORE, a Cistercian Monk, CONNAUGHT.]

the first Abbat of Boyle, became Bishop of Clonfert. He is styled "Bishop of Omaine" (the district in which Clonfert is situate). He was a Prelate greatly esteemed; "a divine and learned monk." He was unhappily drowned in the River Shannon, near Portnacarrig, on December 27, 1171.

1171. MAEL ISA M'AWARD succeeded. He sat a very short time, dying in 1173.

1173 (?). MAEL CALLAN M'ADAM O'CLERICEN. He died in 1186.

1187. MUIRCHEARTAGH O'MAOILUIDHER, Bishop of Clonfert and Clonmacnois, died. [Four Masters.]

1195. DONALD O'FINN, "Comorban of Clonfert Brendan," Abbat or Bishop, died.

1202. MUIRCHEARTACH O'CORMACAIN died. [Four Masters.] Ware states, that the Annals of Innisfallen assert that a Bishop of this name died at Clonfert in 1205, but that his see is not named.

1248. THOMAS, Bishop of Clonfert, died; and on May 27th, 1249, King Henry III. issued his license for the election of a successor.

1249. CORMAC or CHARLES O'LUMHAIN was a person in high esteem for probity and learning. He is believed to have been elected successor to Thomas. The Four Masters style him "a venerable divine, the chief sage of Ireland." He died at a great age, in 1259. Perhaps the ancient seal mentioned above, p. 158, belonged to this Prelate.

1259. THOMAS O'KELLY, a man of noble family, son and brother of successive chieftains of Hy Many [O'Donovan] succeeded. He died on the Sunday after Epiphany, 1263-4, and was buried in the Dominican Convent of Athenry.

1266. JOHN, an Italian, the Pope's Nuncio, was appointed by Papal authority, after a vacancy of three years. He was consecrated at Athenry, on the Sunday before Christmas in that year. He proved to be a great benefactor to his church, and is believed to have erected the statues and other carvings which decorate the western end of the cathedral. After governing this diocese thirty years, the Pope promoted him to the archbishopric of Benevento, in Italy.

1296. ROBERT, a Monk of Christ Church, Canterbury, was appointed Bishop by the Pope, and was confirmed by the King. He sat here eleven years, and died in 1307.
1308. GREGORY O'BROGY, Dean of this cathedral, was elected Bishop by the Chapter, pursuant to the Royal license, on April 23rd. He, like his predecessor, governed the diocese eleven years. He died in 1319.
1319. ROBERT LE PETIT, a Franciscan Friar, was elected by the Chapter, on February 10th; and that election was confirmed by the King, on February 24th. In 1321 he was deprived of his see, for some cause now unknown; and in 1325 was created Bishop of Enaghdone by the Pope. In that same year we find him acting as "official" to the Bishop of Exeter. [Cole.]
1322. JOHN O'LEAN (or ILEYAN), Archdeacon of Tuam, was appointed by the Pope, and received the King's confirmation towards the close of this year. He governed the see thirteen years, and died on April 7th, 1336. Upon his death, the King placed the temporalities under custodiam, and no Bishop was appointed for ten years.
1347. THOMAS O'KELLY, a Secular Priest, is found in possession of the see on October 14th of this year. We do not know the exact time of his appointment. It seems probable that he died in 1377.
1378. MAURICE O'KELLY, another Secular Priest, was consecrated to this see in 1378. He appears to have sided with Gregory, one of the rival Archbishops of Tuam, and to have joined him in annoying his competitor and successor, William. In 1394 the Pope translated Maurice to Tuam, having forced William to resign his archbishopric. At the same time he offered Clonfert to William; but that prelate declined the offer, and soon afterwards died of a broken heart from his ill usage.

[1398. WILLIAM O'CORMACAIN, the ejected Archbishop of Tuam, received a grant of this bishopric from the Pope; but he declined to take out the bulls for his appointment. See above.]

1398. DAVID CORRE, a Franciscan Friar, was appointed Bishop by the Pope, on March 20th. We do not know how long he sat.

1407. THOMAS O'KELLY is found in the see at this year, and in 1415 and 1435. In Trinity College, Dublin [MS. F. 1. 18.], is a "Redditus Episcopatum Clonfertens. temporibus Tho. I'Kelly Ep.ⁱ Clonf.^s 1407." In 1438 he was translated to the archbishopric of Tuam.

1438. JOHN O'HEYN, a Franciscan Friar, Provincial of his Order in Ireland, was appointed Bishop by the Pope, on July 19th. He sat about four years.

1442(?) THOMAS DE BURGO succeeded. He died in 1446, and was buried in the Dominican Convent of Athenry.

1446-7. JOHN WITH, a Franciscan Friar, formerly Provincial of his Order, was elected Bishop; but either he declined the dignity, or else he resigned it almost immediately afterwards.

1447. CORNELIUS O'MULLEDY, O'MAOLALLA, or O'MULLALLY, another Franciscan, was appointed by the Pope, on May 22nd. But he sat here a very short time, being translated to the see of Emly in the following year.

1448. CORNELIUS O'CUNLIS, Bishop of Emly, was directed by the Pope to exchange sees with O'Mulledy. His provision to Clonfert is dated September 29th. He was alive, at Rome, in 1469; and is believed to have resigned his bishopric before that year.

1482. MATTHEW M'CRAITH, a civilian, educated at Oxford, appears as Bishop in this year. He is said to have been a person greatly esteemed. He died in a Franciscan convent, at Killought in Galway, in 1507, and was buried at Kilcomain.

1508. DAVID DE BURGO, a Secular Priest, succeeded by the Pope's provision, on July 5th. He died in the following year.

1509. DENIS O'MORE, B. D. a Dominican Friar, was appointed Bishop by the Pope, on November 7th. He died in the year 1534. [Hib. Domin.]

1536. RICHARD NANGLE (DE ANGULO), D. D. who was Provincial of the Augustinian Hermits in Ireland, was promoted by King Henry VIII. and consecrated in this year. The Pope had previously appointed another person; and Nangle made way for him, either by death or resignation, in or before 1541(a).

1541. ROLAND DE BURGO, Dean of Clonfert, had been appointed to the bishopric by Pope Paul VII. in 1534; but we do not know that he took possession at that time; and as the King's ecclesiastical supremacy was

(a) On this subject there is a curious letter in the Lambeth Library, from R. Couley to Thomas Cromwell, the Vicar-General in spirituals of King Henry VIII. He says:

"The Papysticall sect is springing up and increasing; whereas the King proposes one Doctor Nangle to the bishopric of Clonfert, one Rowland Burk purchased bulls from Rome, whereby he repulsed the King's presentee. * * * Religious men (monks) now go immediately to Rome, and obtain what they want; so that there are now five Bishops put in by the Pope." [Cod. DC 11.]

Mr. Nangle had been recommended to the King by Archbishop Brown, who reported him to be not only "well learned, but also a right honest man, and one who will set forth the word of God in the Irish tongue." [State Papers, III. p. 123.]

acknowledged in Ireland in 1536, Henry nominated Richard Nangle, as mentioned above, p. 165. Afterwards, in 1541, Nangle being probably dead, Roland obtained the King's assent in due form on September 23rd, and a patent for his consecration was directed to the Archbishop of Armagh. [Cod. Clarendon, 36.] The King, by a grant dated October 24th, 1541, permitted him to hold his deanery and other benefices in commendam [Rot. Pat. 33 Hen. VIII.]; and, in 1542, largely augmented the revenue of the bishopric, by annexing to it the lands, &c. of the dissolved Abbey of Clonfert. In April 1552, this prelate obtained a grant of the bishopric of Elphin; and continued to hold both sees till his death, at a very advanced age, in June 1580.

1582. STEPHEN (KEROVAN) KIRWAN, had been Archdeacon of Enachdune, and in 1573 was raised to the bishopric of Kilmacduagh; he was translated to Clonfert, by patent dated May 24th, 1582. He is believed to have died in 1601.

CLONFERT AND KILMACDUAGH.

1601. ROLAND LYNCH, Bishop of Kilmacduagh, obtained a grant of this see in commendam, on October 20th, 1601; he states that he entered upon his bishopric on February 14th, 1601-2. [MS. Todd.] From this period these two sees have continued in union. There is great reason to believe that he sadly impaired the revenues of both of them, by granting improper leases. He died at Loughrea, in December 1625.

1627. ROBERT DAWSON, D. D. an Englishman, Dean of Down, and a Prebendary of Lismore, succeeded to the sees of Clonfert and Kilmacduagh, by a patent dated April 29th, which declared the union to be for his life only. He was permitted to hold the prebend of Tipper, in St. Patrick's, Dublin, in commendam, together with any other benefice (except the deanery of Clonfert, or of Kilmacduagh) not exceeding the value of £30 sterling in the King's books, provided that not more than two of them have cure of souls.

He also received a grant, to him and his successors for ever, of the dissolved Abbey of Clonfert ["De Portu puro"] in frank almoigne, with all lands and appurtenances thereto belonging, with a clause of union to the said bishopric. [Lib. Mun.] This abbey had formerly been given to the see by King Henry VIII. (see above); but was afterwards aliened; then recovered and resumed by the Crown: it was finally restored to the see, by the care and exertions of the Earl of Strafford, by a writ of Privy Seal dated September 24th, 1634. [Strafford's Letters, vol. i. pp. 172, 301, 392.]

The Bishop was consecrated on May 4th, in the Chapel of Dublin Castle, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Ossory and Ferns. He rebuilt the see house of Clonfert.

Having been much ill-used during the rebellion of 1641, he retired with some difficulty to England, and died at his father's house in Kendal, in Westmoreland, on April 13th, 1643. He was buried in the parish church; where, on a brass plate, affixed to a stone lying within the communion-rails, is the following inscription:

"Hic jacet Reverendus in Christo Pater ROBERTUS DAWSON, Episcopus Clonfertensis et Duacensis Hibernicus. Qui obiit die 13 Aprilis, 1643."

[See a brief memoir of the Bishop, in a work entitled "Annals of Kendal."]

1644. WILLIAM BAYLY, D. D. a native of Scotland, educated at Glasgow (but D. D. of Oxford), having been driven out of his country by the Covenanters, fled into Ireland, and afterwards joined King Charles at Oxford. He was promoted to these sees by patent dated March 23rd; and was consecrated at Oxford, by Archbishop Ussher, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Down, on May 2nd. It appears from the Rolls of Chancery, 18-20 Car. I. that he had been designed for the see of Kilmore, upon Bishop Bedell's death; for we find a revocation of several letters patent made to him, dated March 3rd, 1643-4. [Todd's MSS.] The Bishop had little enjoyment of his see until the King's Restoration. He died at Clonfert, on August 11th, 1664, and was buried in the cathedral.

1664-5. EDWARD WOLLEY, D. D. a native of Shrewsbury, in England, educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, was domestic Chaplain to King Charles I. and afterwards to King Charles II. who, in reward of his great diligence in reclaiming sectaries to the Church, promoted him to these bishoprics, by patent dated March 10th. He was consecrated at Tuam, on April 16th, by Samuel, Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Killala.

He set himself to work at repairing and improving his cathedral; and also the episcopal residence. In one of the rooms of this last, his armorial bearings yet remain over the chimney-piece, with the motto "pasce oves."

Dr. Wolley was highly respected in his dioceses, for his excellence in preaching and his exemplary life. A list of his numerous published works is given in Ware's Writers of Ireland. He died, from an accidental fall in his own house (as currently reported), in 1684. Upon his death, King James II. seized the episcopal revenues, and gave them to the Popish Bishops, keeping the two sees without a lawful pastor.

1691. WILLIAM FITZGERALD, D. D. a native of Cork, Dean of Cloyne, and Archdeacon of Ross, succeeded, by patent dated July 1st; and was consecrated in Christ Church, Dublin, on the 26th of that month, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Meath, Kildare, and Raphoe. He was a generous benefactor to the poor of Dublin and Clonfert. After governing these dioceses upwards of thirty years, he died in 1722, aged about eighty-eight years.

1722. THEOPHILUS BOLTON, D. D. a native of the county of Mayo, Præcentor of Christ Church, and Chancellor of St. Patrick's, Dublin, was promoted by patent dated September 12th; and was consecrated at St. Patrick's, on September 30th, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Elphin. He was enthroned at Clonfert, on October 8th; and at Kilmacduagh, on October 15th. [D. Reg.] In 1724 he was translated to Elphin, and afterwards to Cashel.

1724. ARTHUR PRICE, D. D. (son of the Rev. Samuel Price, Vicar of Straffan, in the diocese of Dublin [MS. Todd.]), Dean of Ferns, and Archdeacon and a Canon of Kildare, succeeded by patent dated May 1st. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, on May 3rd, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Elphin; and was enthroned at Clonfert, on June 29th, and at Kilmacduagh the next day. In 17 $\frac{29}{30}$ he was translated to Ferns, and subsequently to Meath, and to Cashel.

1730. EDWARD SYNGE, M. A. Chancellor of St. Patrick's, Dublin, was promoted by patent dated May 28th, and was consecrated at St. Werburgh's Church, in Dublin, on June 7th, by his father, the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Killala; his younger brother, afterwards Bishop of Killaloe, preaching the CONNAUGHT.]

consecration sermon. [Mant.] He was enthroned at Clonfert, on March 4th; and at Kilmacduagh, on March 18th, following. In 1731 he was translated to Cloyne; in 1733 to Ferns; and in 1740 to Elphin. He published:

1. A Sermon on the King's Accession. 4to. Dublin, 1719.

2. A Sermon on the Anniversary of the Irish Rebellion. 4to. 1725.

3. A Sermon on the same occasion. 4to. 1731.

1731. MORDECAI CARY, D. D. was a native of England, educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. He was Rector of St. Catherine's, in Colman-street, London; and became Chaplain to the Duke of Dorset, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who promoted him to this bishopric. His patent bears date March 22nd. He was consecrated on March 26th, in St. Anne's Church, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Elphin; and was enthroned at Clonfert on June 5th, and at Kilmacduagh on June 16th. [D. Reg.] He published "A Sermon on the 5th of November, preached at Christ Church, Dublin." 4to. Dublin, 1735. In that year he was translated to Killala.

1735. JOHN WHETCOMBE, D. D. formerly a Fellow of Trinity College Dublin, became a Canon of Kildare, and Chaplain to the Duke of Dorset, Lord Lieutenant, and Rector of Louth, in the diocese of Armagh. He was promoted to this bishopric by patent dated December 24th; was consecrated on January 4th, at St. Peter's Church, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Elphin; and was enthroned at Clonfert, on January 15th, and at Kilmacduagh, on January 20th. [D. Reg.] In 1742 the bishopric of Kilfenora was given to him in commendam; but this arrangement was not continued to his successors. In 1752 he was translated to Down; and shortly afterwards was made Archbishop of Cashel.

1752. ARTHUR SMYTH, D. D. Dean of Derry, succeeded, by patent dated March 4th. He was consecrated in St. Andrew's Church, Dublin, on April 5th, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Elphin. In the next year he was translated to the see of Down; afterwards to Meath; and finally to Dublin. See some account of him in "Eblana Depicta." [Todd's MS.]

1753. Hon. WILLIAM CARMICHAEL, LL. D. (second son of the second Earl of Hyndeford), was Archdeacon of Bucks, in England, in 1742, and became Chaplain to the Earl of Harrington, Lord Lieutenant. He was promoted to this bishopric by patent dated January 26th; and was consecrated at St. Werburgh's, Dublin, on April 1st, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Raphoe. In 1758 he was translated to Ferns, shortly afterwards to Meath, and eventually to Dublin.

1758. WILLIAM GORE, M. A. Dean of Cashel (son of Dr. William Gore, Dean of Down) succeeded. His patent bears date April 6th. He was consecrated at St. Anne's Church, Dublin, on April 16th, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Derry and Elphin; was enthroned at Clonfert, on May 5th, and at Kilmacduagh on June 5th. [D. Reg.] In 1762 he was translated to Elphin.

1762. JOHN OSWALD, B. C. L. was an Englishman, educated at St. Mary's Hall, Oxford. He became Rector of Marlow, in Shrophire, and a Prebendary of Westminster. He came to Ireland as Chaplain to the Earl of Halifax, Lord Lieutenant; and was promoted to this bishopric by patent dated July 3rd. He was consecrated in St. Michan's Church, Dublin, on July 4th, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the bishops of Derry and Elphin. In 1763 he was translated to Dromore.

1763. DENISON CUMBERLAND, M. A. a native of England, was educated at Westminster, and at the University of Cambridge; and became Vicar of Fulham, near London. He was raised to these sees by patent dated May 16th; and was consecrated in St. Andrew's Church, Dublin, on June 19th, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Elphin and Down. He was enthroned at Clonfert, on June 28th. In 1772 he was translated to Kilmore. A full account of this prelate may be seen in the "Memoirs of Richard Cumberland" (his son). 2 vols. 8vo. 1807.

1772. WALTER COPE, M. A. Dean of Dromore, and Rector of Loughgilly, in the diocese of Armagh, was promoted by patent dated March 9th; and was consecrated in the Castle Chapel, Dublin, on March 15th, by the Primate, assisted by the Bishops of Kilmore and Dromore. He was enthroned at Clonfert, on April 7th; and at Kilmacduagh (by proxy), on April 15th. [D. Reg.] In 1782 he was translated to Ferns.

1782. JOHN LAW, M. A. an Englishman (son of Dr. Edmund Law, Bishop of Carlisle, and brother of the first Lord Ellenborough, and of Dr. George H. Law, Bishop of Bath and Wells), received his education at the Charterhouse, and at the University of Cambridge. He became Archdeacon of Carlisle; and having been appointed Chaplain to the Duke of Portland, Lord Lieutenant, came to Ireland, and was promoted to this bishopric by patent dated August 24th. He was consecrated in the Chapel of Dublin Castle, on September 21st, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Cloyne.

He was considered to be a man of great genius and high literary attainments. In 1787 he was translated to Killala, and afterwards to Elphin.

1787. RICHARD MARLAY, M. A. Dean of Ferns, succeeded, by patent dated November 12th; and was consecrated in the Castle Chapel, Dublin, on December 30th, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Ossory and Killaloe. He was a person of great talents, and was universally esteemed as an excellent Prelate. In 1795 he was translated to Waterford.

1795. Hon. CHARLES BRODRICK, D. D. was Treasurer of Cloyne and Rector of Middleton, when he was raised to this bishopric. His patent bears date March 21st. He was consecrated in the Castle Chapel, Dublin, on Saturday, March 22nd, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Cork and Killaloe; and was enthroned at Clonfert, on May 1st; and at Kilmacduagh, by proxy, on the following day. [D. Reg.] In 1796 he was translated to Kilmore, and afterwards to Cashel.

1796. HUGH HAMILTON, D. D. Dean of Armagh, succeeded. His patent is dated January 20th. He was consecrated in the Chapel of Trinity College, Dublin, on January 31st, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Elphin. He was enthroned by proxy. After sitting here two years, he was translated to Ossory.

1798. MATTHEW YOUNG, D. D. a native of Castlerea, in the county of Roscommon, became a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and Professor of Natural Philosophy in the University. He was selected for promotion as being "the most distinguished literary character in the kingdom." He was generally considered a person of first-rate attainments in science, an exemplary divine, and of elegant manners and cheerful disposition. His patent for this bishopric is dated February 2nd; and he was consecrated the next day in Trinity College Chapel, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Elphin. He was enthroned at Clonfert, by proxy, in May 1799. After an incumbency of less than two years, he was unhappily cut off by the disease of cancer on the tongue, at the age of fifty years. His death took place at Whitworth, in Lancashire, on November 28th, 1800. His body was brought to Ireland, and was interred in Trinity College Chapel. It is somewhat remarkable, that no Bishop of Clonfert had died during the preceding 116 years.

Dr. Young was an early patron of the Royal Irish Academy, and a valuable contributor to its published "Transactions." He also left behind him the following works, in print:

1. An Enquiry into the principal Phænomena of Sounds and Musical Strings. 8vo. Dublin, 1784.

2. Ancient Gaelic Poems, collected in the Highlands of Scotland. 4to. Dublin, 1787.

3. An Enquiry how far the Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, is invested with a Negative on the Proceedings of the Senior Fellows. (Anonymous.) 8vo. Dublin, 1790.

4. State of the Case, respecting the Right of the Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, to exercise a controlling Negative at the College Board; with the opinion of Counsel thereon. (Anonymous.) 8vo. Dublin, 1792.

5. Demonstration of Newton's Theory for the Correction of Spherical Errors in the Object-glasses of Telescopes. 4to. Dublin, 1792.

6. Philosophical Essays, viz.:

On the Force of Testimony in establishing Facts contrary to Analogy.

On the Precession of the Equinoxes.

On the number of primitive colorific rays of Solar light.

On the Velocity with which fluids issue from the apertures in Vessels. 4to. Dublin, 1799.

7. An analysis of the principles of Natural Philosophy (being the heads of lectures, as found among his papers after his death). 8vo. Dublin, 1803.

1801. GEORGE DE LA POER BERESFORD, LL. D. Dean of Kilmore, succeeded, by patent dated January 2nd. He was consecrated on February 1st, at St. Thomas's Church, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Killala and Elphin. In the following year he was translated to Kilmore.

1802. NATHANAEL ALEXANDER, D. D. Præcentor of Armagh, was raised to this bishopric by patent dated March 11th. He was consecrated at St. Mark's Church, Dublin, on March 21st, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Clogher and Cloyne; and was enthroned at Clonfert, on February 7th, 1803. In 1804 he was translated to Killaloe, and afterwards to Meath.

1804. CHRISTOPHER BUTSON, D. D. was born in the parish of Lambeth, Westminster, in May 1747. He was the son of John Butson, a gentleman who owned the property upon which the well-known Astley's Amphitheatre was afterwards erected.

At nine years of age he was sent to the school of Dr. Lydiatt, at Warwick. Afterwards he was removed to Winchester. In January 1767, he was matriculated at Oxford, as a Commoner of Trinity College; and in the next year obtained a Fellowship of New College. In 1771 he gained the Chancellor's prize for an English poem "On the Love of our Country;" a composition which was considered to have a high degree of merit, and which has been printed more than once. In 1772 he became B. A.; but the superior degrees he took in Trinity College, Dublin, after his retirement from England; becoming M. A. in 17—; D. D. in 1790. In 1774 he vacated his Fellowship of New College, by marrying the daughter of Sir H. Gould, of Sharpham Park, in Somersetshire; and coming over to Ireland in that year, took Priest's Orders in Dublin, on November 1st. [Consist. Dubl.] His earliest preferment in this country was to the rectory of Kiltullagh, in the diocese of Tuam. In April 1784 he was appointed Dean of Waterford; and in June of the same year was presented to the vicarage of Kilbarran, in the diocese of Raphoe. (FF.) In 1802 he was made Chancellor of Ferns.

His patent for this see bears date July 12th. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on July 29th, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Waterford.

He constantly resided upon his see during thirty-four years, a period more than equal to that of the united incumbencies of his eight next predecessors, who had occupied Clonfert as a stepping stone to more eligible bishoprics. In the year 1834, by the vacancy occasioned by the translation of Bishop Ponsonby from Killaloe to Limerick, the sees of Killaloe and Kilfenora became united to Clonfert, under the Church Temporalities Act.

Dr. Butson died at Bath, in the eighty-ninth year of his age, on March 22nd, 1836; and was buried in the abbey church of that city. A monument was erected there to his memory, which bears the following inscription, composed by himself:

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

The Chapter of Clonfert consists of a Dean, Archdeacon, Sacrist, and eight Prebendaries. We find notices of the Chapter as early as the year 1307; but are able to trace very few of its members before the sixteenth century.

SUCCESSION OF DEANS.

1308. GREGORY O'BROGY was Dean. In this year he was unanimously elected Bishop of the diocese.

1319. JAMES appears as Dean. [Cod. Clar. 46.]

1534. ROLAND (FITZREYMOND) DE BURGO was Dean in this year, when the Pope appointed him to the bishopric of Clonfert. But as King Henry VIII. had previously placed another person in that see, Roland's appointment remained null until the year 1541; when, the Bishop having died, Roland succeeded, with the King's consent, and was permitted to hold his deanery in commendam. He died, full of years, in June 1580. [Ware.]

Having come over to Ireland as Chaplain to the Marquess of Ormond, Lord Lieutenant, he was appointed a Prebendary of Kilkenny in 1634; Chancellor of Cashel, and Rector of Knockgraffon in that diocese, in 1636; and was promoted to this deanery by patent dated November 14th. [Rolls Office.] In 1642 he was made a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin. Having been plundered by the rebels soon after the outbreak in 1641, to the amount of between £4000 and £5000, he retired to England; and, returning at the restoration of King Charles II. was advanced to the archbishopric of Tuam.

Reg.] In 1767 he became a Prebendary of Elphin. In 1770 he was instituted to the prebend of Geashill, in the cathedral of Kildare. He held his deanery more than forty-five years, till his death in 1812. He published a work, entitled "Twenty-one Lectures on Divinity," 8vo. Dublin, 1787: and in the Anthologia Hibernica (vol. ii. p. 261) is a letter by him, on the subject of Dr. Geddes's Translation of the Bible.

1812. THOMAS HAWKINS, D. D. succeeded by patent dated May 7th, and was instituted on May 27th. (FF.) He was Rector of Dunkerrin, in the diocese of Killala. PRÆCENTORS.

It appears from a Regal Visitation Book, of the year 1615(?) that the Cathedral of Clonfert formerly had a Præcentor: but no such dignitary is now known, nor do the names of any Præcentors remain on record.

TREASURERS, see under SACRISTS.

1634. MICHAEL SMYTH, M. A. was collated to the Archdeaconry. (FF.) Quære, if he had not been formerly a Prebendary of Elphin? See p. 154. In 1638-9, he obtained a prebend in the church of Tuam.

He appears to have possessed a considerable private property. The rebels, in 1641, plundered him of cattle and goods to the amount of £9200. He saved his life by escaping from them to the fort of Galway. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. F. 3. 1.]

1702. ADAM USSHER, M. A. was collated on June 8th. (FF.) Probably he was the son of Sir William Ussher, Knight, of Dublin, and of Grange, in the county of Wicklow; a collateral descendant of Archbishop Ussher. [See Elrington's Life of Ussher.]

ANCIENT PREBENDS.

1. CROISCORNAIN, or CROSSCORNAN.

It does not sufficiently appear whether this was a prebendal church in the diocese of Tuam (see above, p. 46), of Clonfert, or of Kilmacduagh. It is given to the last in MS. F. 1. 18. Trin. Coll. Dubl. but to Clonfert in the First Fruits' Returns. But the accounts of these dioceses are often so mixed together, that it is sometimes difficult to ascertain the diocese to which a church belongs.

1628. WILLIAM BERNARD, Prebendary of Killaspicmoylan, was collated to this prebend on August 6th. (FF.)

2. KILUARNAN (quære, KILLORAN, or KILCORNAN?)

1683. ANTONY BURKE, admitted April 25th. (FF.)

It does not appear, certainly, whether this church belongs to Clonfert, or to Kilmacduagh, or even to Tuam.

ADDENDUM to the Notice of Bishop Young's Publications,
p. 174.

At the time when that page was printed off, I was not aware of another work commenced by the Bishop, but not quite finished, and never made public; namely, "The Psalms of David, a new Translation, with Notes." 8vo. This was composed while the author was a Fellow of Trinity College, and was put to press; but some of his friends having taken exception to the work, it was discontinued, and the printed sheets were destroyed. The only copies which I have met with were two in the library of the late Dr. Elrington, Regius Professor of Divinity, one of which was printed on thick quarto-size paper. It has no title: it contains a Preface, p. i.-xxx. ; Psalms, i. to cxxxvii. 2, on pp. 1-264; and notes on Psalms i. to cx. on pp. 1-96.

DIOCESE OF KILMACDUAGH.

This see is believed to have been founded in the early part of the seventh century, by Colman, the son of Duach, from whom it derived its name KIL MAC DUACH (or as commonly pronounced, KILMACOW.) We find it sometimes called the bishopric of "Hy Fiachrach Aidhne," and of "Kinel Hugh." Its territorial extent is very small, and the benefices are few; on which account it was annexed by way of commendam to the church of Clonfert, in 1602; and this union has been continued to the present day.

Scarcely one of its Bishops during the first five or six centuries can now be ascertained.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

I know of no ancient seal of the Bishops. The present armorial bearings of the see are engraved in Harris's Ware.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

Circa A. D. 620. COLMAN MAC DUAGH, a person related to the Kings of Connaught, lived for seven years as a hermit in the southern parts of Connaught. He afterwards was raised to the rank of a Bishop, and fixed his seat at the place called after him, Kil Mac Duagh. The duration of his incumbency and the time of his death are unknown(a).

814. INDRECHT, Bishop of Kilmacduagh, died. [Ware.]

1178. RUGNAD O'RUADAN, son of Cellaigh (or Gilla Cellaigh), died.

1203. MAG GIOLLA CHEALLAGH O'RUADAIN died. [Four Masters.] Quære, whether this be not the same with the foregoing Prelate?

1224. MAOL MUIRE O'CONMAIC, "Bishop of Hy Fiachra, Killala, and Kinel Hugh," died. [Four Masters.]

1227. ODO, or HUGH, who was Præcentor of this church, was elected its Bishop; and received the King's confirmation of his election on May 12th. [Ware.]

1247. CONNOR O'MURRAY, "Bishop of Fiachra Aidhne," died. [Four Masters.]

1249. GELASIUS MAC SCELEGAI, Bishop, died. [Ware.]

(a) "On the south side of the cathedral is an ancient altar, in good taste; under a relief of a bishop is this inscription: 'Sanctus Colman patronus totius Diocesis Duacensis.' In the middle is a crucifix, and a person on each side, with 'Ave Maria' and some devotions round it.

"To the west of the cathedral, in the churchyard, is a small cell, where they say the Patron Saint was buried, and that the body was afterwards carried to Aghrim. Between this and the church is M'Duagh's chapel; in which is standing a large tree, of which they take pieces by way of relics; and to the south of this is a raised work of stone, which they call the Bishop's Bed."—[Bp. Pococke's MSS. Todd.]

1283. MAURICE I'LATHNAN, or I'LEYAN, died, and was interred in the Dominican Convent of Athenry. In January or March of the following year the King issued his license to the Chapter for the election of a successor.
1284. DAVID O'SEDAGHAN was elected Bishop. He received back his temporalities from the King on July 13th. He died in 1290, and was buried in the same convent as his predecessor.
1290. LAURENCE O'LAGHTNAN, a Cistercian Monk, succeeded. He probably was a man of eminence, as we find him governing three large abbeys in succession, namely, Ashroe, Boyle, and Knockmoy. The King gave his assent to the election on August 10th. The bishop died about the beginning of 1306, 1307, or 1308.
1308. LUKE succeeded to the vacant bishopric; and held it during seventeen or eighteen years, till his death, in 1325.
1326. JOHN, who was at the time Dean of this cathedral, was elected by the Chapter, and had his temporalities restored by the King on September 3rd. [Rot. Canc.] He was consecrated in that year by Malachi, Archbishop of Tuam. He was living in 1347; but it is not known how long he held his see.
1360. NICHOLAS was consecrated to this see in 1360. We know nothing concerning him, except that he was sitting in 1371, and perhaps in 1377.
1394. GREGORY I'LATHNAN, or I'LEYAN (a Dominican?) appears as Bishop in 1394. He died in the following year, and was buried in the Dominican abbey of Roscommon.
1395. NICHOLAS I'LEYAN, a Dominican Monk, succeeded. He only held the see four years, dying in 1399. He was buried in the Dominican convent of Athenry.

1399. JOHN I'COMAID succeeded; of whom we know nothing but that his death is registered in the year 1401 in the register of the aforesaid convent of Athenry.

1418. JOHN, Abbat of Corcumroe, was promoted to this bishopric by the Pope, on October 23rd, in this year. We do not find the names of those who succeeded him for about seventy years.

149 $\frac{2}{3}$. CORNELIUS appears as Bishop. He resigned in 1502. [A return of the revenues of this see in the year 1500, is in Trin. Coll. Dubl. MS. F. 1. 18.]

150 $\frac{2}{3}$. MATTHEW, Archdeacon of Killaloe, succeeded, by the Pope's provision, dated March 8th. He was still sitting in 1523. The time of his death is not known.

1533 or 1534. CHRISTOPHER BODEKIN, or BODKIN, was consecrated Bishop of Kilmacduagh, at Marseilles in France, on November 4th. In 1536 King Henry VIII. gave him the archbishopric of Tuam, and he governed both dioceses till his death in 1572.

1573. STEPHEN KIRWAN (or KEROVAN), Archdeacon of Enaghdone, was appointed by Queen Elizabeth on April 13th. In 1582 he was translated to Clonfert, and his see was placed under a custodiam.

1582. THOMAS BANCKES, a Franciscan Friar, had a custodiam of this see granted to him by the Lord Deputy, Sir John Perrott. In 1585 we find him, under the title of "Elect Bishop of Kilmacduagh," a party to an indenture between the Lord Deputy and Lord Clanrickard, and others. [O'Flaherty's West Connaught, Append. p. 323.] Bishop Lynch, in his return made to the Royal visitors in 1615, states that on his entrance to the bishopric in 1587, he found Banckes in possession. [Prerog. Office.]

1587. ROLAND LYNCH, Archdeacon of Clonfert, was appointed Bishop, by Letter of Privy Seal dated June 14th [Rot. Pat.] and was consecrated in the beginning of August. In 1602 he was made Bishop of Clonfert, with license to hold Kilmacduagh in commendam. Since that period the two sees have always gone together; and the succeeding Bishops are to be found under the diocese of Clonfert.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

It appears that anciently this Chapter comprised a Dean, Archdeacon, Treasurer, Præcentor, and Provost (the Provost here, as in a few other instances, seeming to hold the place of Chancellor); also six Prebendaries. Of these last, only two now form part of the capitular body. In 1500 it had a Chancellor as well as a Provost, and five prebends; namely, Kenvarra, Disert Kelly, Ecclesiarum parvarum, Cauda (or Canda), and Croiscornan. [MS. Trin. Coll. Dubl. F. I. 18.]

SEAL.

An ancient seal of a Dean of Kilmacduagh is now in the Museum of the Royal Irish Academy, bearing a figure of the Virgin and Child, with the inscription SIGILLUM DAVID DECANI DUACENINS (Duacensis). By the workmanship it appears to be of the fourteenth century. It was found about a year ago, in the ruins of the cathedral.

SUCCESSION OF DEANS.

1326. JOHN, Dean of this church, was elected its Bishop by the Chapter, and obtained the King's approval of his appointment. [Ware.]

1591. MATTHEW WARDE appears. [Ibid. E. 3. 14.] In a patent roll of James I. (12 Jac. I.) he is called M'Warde. He appears again in 1615, as party in a Chancery suit relating to the O'Shaughnessy family, and is then described as being eighty years old, and upwards. [Hy Fiachrach, p. 379.]

ANCIENT PREBENDS.

It is not easy to ascertain at this day what several of these prebends were; nor does it appear whether they belonged to Kilmacduagh, to Clonfert, or to Tuam; for the earlier returns of these three dioceses are sometimes mixed up together, and sufficient specification is not given. That sermon was preached while its author was nominally a priest of the Church of Rome; it was designed partly as a reply to a recent pamphlet by the Rev. Joseph Berrington (a well-known Roman Catholic writer, whose sentiments were deemed too liberal by many of the priests of his communion), in which the author had made some statements which were supposed to cast reflections upon certain practices of the Romish Church. The letter to his friend is dated June 19th, 1787; and it informs us that Mr. Kirwan had conformed to the Protestant religion two days previously, namely, on June 17th; and that he had made his public profession of faith before the Venerable Dr. Hastings, Archdeacon of Dublin. It is scarcely necessary to add, that this discourse is not contained in the volume of his sermons published in 1816.

P. 150, line 19, read, The appointment to the prebend was recommended for suspension by the Privy Council, but was not suspended; but some portion of the revenues was disappropriated, and transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, by an order dated October 22nd, 1841. [Council Books.]

P. 151, l. 2, add, by an order dated June 26th, 1846. [Ibid.]

FASTI ECCLESIAE HIBERNICÆ.

CONSECRATIONS OF IRISH PRELATES.

THE following account of the Consecrations to Irish Sees, since the Reformation, may, perhaps, prove acceptable to many inquirers. It commences from the year 1551, when the Reformed Service-book of King Edward VI. was ordered to be received and adopted in Ireland, by Royal Proclamation.

Many of these Consecrations have been already made public, by Sir James Ware, and his editor, Harris ; others have been obtained from original sources, as Diocesan Registries, Chapter-books, Family Papers, &c., by my late valued friend, the Rev. Dr. Elrington, and myself.

The series is not complete in its details; for most of our Registers, during the troubled reign of Queen Elizabeth, have been mislaid or destroyed; and I have not had sufficient opportunity hitherto of collecting the particulars from other faithful quarters.

The number of Irish Prelates from the year 1551, including those who were sitting at that time, is 581, namely :

Armagh, 21	Kilfenora, 8	Emly, 2	Derry, 26
Clonmacnois, 2	Elphin, 19	Ross, 3	Kildare, 20
Down & Connor, 29	Clonfert, 26	Ardfert, 7	Leighlin, 4
Raphoe, 24	Clogher, 19	Tuam, 18	Waterford, 19
Ossory, 29	Kilmore, 21	Killala, 26	Cloyne, 29
Cashel, 20	Dromore, 27	Kilmacduagh, 4	Killaloe, 33
Cork, 24	Dublin, 22	Meath, 28	Enachdune, 1
Limerick, 25	Ferns, 31	Ardagh, 11	Achonry, 3

CONNAUGHT.]

CONSECRATIONS.

The number of Consecrations since 1551 is 325.

No Archbishop of Armagh has been consecrated since A. D. 1613.

No Prelate has been consecrated to Clogher since 1645.

Nor to Elphin since 1667.

Nor to Kildare since 1705.

No Prelate was consecrated to Meath between 1625 and 1840.

None to Tuam between 1661 and 1839.

The longest incumbency of an Irish Prelate was that of Miler Magrath, who was Archbishop of Cashel fifty-two years, from 1570 to 1622.

The following interchanges of Prelates between Great Britain and Ireland have occurred since the Reformation :

TRANSLATED FROM ENGLAND.

1724. Hugh Boulter, „ Bristol „ Armagh.

TRANSLATED FROM WALES.

1627. William Murray, „ Kilfenora „ Llandaff.

1667. William Fuller, „ Limerick „ Lincoln.

1692. Edward Jones, „ Cloyne „ St. Asaph.

NOTE.—Those Prelates to whose names an asterisk (*) is prefixed, were consecrated according to the form in the Roman Ritual.

The names, or dates, within brackets [] are those of which there may possibly be some doubt, as the authorities do not always agree.
